

Public meet to air charter status for Huron

Huron Township residents are expected to turn out in big numbers for a special public information meeting Thursday, May 10, on whether the township should change to a charter type of government.

Scheduled to begin at 7:30 p.m. at the Miller Elementary School, the meeting will center on the township board's announced intention to pass a resolution of intent to become a charter township.

Clerk Mary Lou Carey said a 13-member committee named in January to investigate and research the charter township status for Huron has completed its assignment and will inform the general public of its findings.

Members of the committee include Sup. Roy Raker and Trustee A. J. Haener, who functions as chairman.

Mrs. Carey said questions still left unanswered were sent by the committee to the Michigan Township Association for clarification. Answers sent by the MTA to the committee will be presented by the committee at the special meeting.

Following completion of its study, the committee voted 12-1 to recommend to the board that it change to a charter township type of government. The lone dissenting vote was cast by George Angel, former supervisor and present member of the Huron school board.

Asked to comment on the charter township for Huron, Mrs. Carey said, "My main concern is the protection it would afford against annexation. We presently have to worry about Romulus on the north and Flat Rock on the southeast."

Under Michigan law, a city can annex a township, but the reverse is not allowed.

Attempts last year by the township board to pursue the charter type of township government were beaten when it was defeated by township voters during the last election. Opposition at that time was led by Angel, the clerk said.

Some township residents seemed afraid of the provision that permits a charter township to levy up to five mills for operation, as opposed to only one mill for a general law township such as Huron is now.

Currently, Huron assesses the one-mill levy for operational purposes and another 12 mills voted in by taxpayers to pay for water and sewer improvements.

"If the board passes a resolution of intent to become a charter township, we will incorporate a provision that states the township will not levy more than the one mill being assessed now for operation," Mrs. Carey emphasized.

The special public meeting May 10 also will gather input from local residents on how they feel toward the charter township plan.

A similar situation exists in Van Buren Township where a successful petition drive will see the charter township proposal placed on the ballot at the next election.

A few months back, the Van Buren Township Board passed a resolution of intent to become a charter township. However, before the mandatory 60-day waiting period was up, the petition drive forced a change in plans.

Some Van Buren residents had expressed the same fears as those in Huron about a possible increase in millage, although the township board assured them it had no plans to hike the one-mill rate now in effect.

Court orders 3rd hearing in Huron

By BOB AMEEN
ANP Staff Writer

A court-ordered public hearing at 7:30 p.m. Thursday, May 17, will air further details of the Space World lunar park proposed for the Huron Township area.

The hearing at Huron Township

Hall, which is one more than the two required by state law, is the latest in a continuing series of court actions between the township and a handful of residents opposing the giant entertainment park.

Estimated by the developer, Space World of Livonia, to cost some $40 million, the park is proposed for a 175-acre parcel southeast of New Boston. A total of nearly 400 acres is under option to Space World.

The suit brought by those opposed to the project to halt its construction has been "unsuccessful so far," said Clerk Mary Lou Carey.

The park's opponents fear the entertainment park would bring traffic problems, excessive noise and general inconvenience to the area by the large influx of people associated with its operation and hordes of spectators.

"I'm personally in favor of the park," said Mrs. Carey. "I feel certain that the township board, the planning commission, the zoning board of appeals and the consultants hired by the township are all looking out for our best interests."

She declared the park would provide a year-around tax base for the township. With the exception of Trustee John Puskar, former supervisor, everyone on the board is in favor of its construction, she said.

The clerk said she could not understand where those now aligned against the park's construction were when the Huron-Clinton Metropolitan Authority took over more than 4,000 acres of township land for its park system after the end of World War II.

"They took all of that land off the township's tax rolls resulting in the loss of considerable revenue, plus the parks attract large crowds from the city. We've had many traffic problems and riots in the park since then," she maintained.

To add insult to injury, township tax dollars paid in special assessments by residents for the park system go to pay for security guards there.

"If the Space World park works out, its benefits will far outweigh any problems it will bring," Mrs. Carey said.

On the plus side, she noted, many

Role of two airports to be aired at meet

Local residents, as well as local officials, will again have an opportunity next week to see, hear, and discuss the future roles of both Detroit Metropolitan Wayne County Airport in Romulus and Willow Run Airport in Van Buren Township.

Public information meetings, part of a recently begun Master Plan Study of the airports which will take approximately two years to complete, will be held on Wednesday, May 16, and Thursday, May 17. Both meetings will begin at 7:30 p.m.

Although the $600,000 Master Plan Study, financed from federal grants, will encompass both of the airports operated by the Wayne County Road Commission, each airport will be discussed separately.

The public information meeting on Metro Airport will be held Wednesday, May 16, 1979 in the Romulus City Hall Council Chambers, 11111 Wayne Rd. The Willow Run Airport meeting will be held Thursday, May 17, 1979 in the Van Buren Township Hall, 46425 Tyler Rd., Belleville.

Both local communities agreed to provide their facilities to permit the third-phase information meetings. The public is invited and encouraged to attend one or both sessions which will be conducted by representatives of TransPlan, Inc., and independent New York-based firm conducting the multi-phase Master Plan Study.

Among the items that will be discussed and explained at these information meetings will be primarily the airports' current capacity demands and looking at demands of the year 2000. In addition, discussion will center on specific facility requirements to meet demands such as cargo handling and terminal space.

It is expected that this and subsequent public information meetings will become more extensive as to final recommendations and methods of financing, alternatives and discussion of alternative evaluation criteria.

Pending completion of the study within a year, recommendations will be made to the Board of Wayne County Road Commissioners (Joseph M. Herron, chairman; Freddie G. Burton, vice-chairman; and Michael Berry, commissioner) who will make their decisions on future airport projects and development.

Romulus pupils have own 'College Bowl'

Halecreek Elementary School students, representing Michigan State University and the University of Southern California, confer over a bonus question during last week's annual "College Bowl" contest sponsored by the school. The eight fifth-grade scholars were chosen by their teachers several months ago, and have been combing school encyclopedias under the supervision of principal Art McPharlin. A special electronic switching device enables monitor Ray Lohner, a physical education teacher at the school, to determine the first team with the answer. If an answer was in doubt, a distinguished panel of judges, consisting of Mayor William Oakley,

School Superintendent James Garfield, and Board President Wayne Avery ruled on the question and assigned points, although not intended to be a battle of the sexes, the boy's team walked away with the contest and thereby set the stage for a continuing series of similar academic showdowns. ### Bike race Saturday

The first of four "bike days" sponsored by the Wayne County Road Commission will take place this coming Saturday (May 12) at the Middle Rouge Parkway on Hines Drive.

Participants are requested to ride their bicycles to the start of the race at Ford Road and Hines Drive in Dearborn as the 11.5 miles of the race course will be closed to pedestrian and motorized traffic and parking in the park will be prohibited.

The race, which has attracted as many as 15,000 competitors in past years, will end at Haggerty Road and Hines Drive in Plymouth Township.

Joseph M. Herron, road commission chairman, said the race will be held rain or shine and is free of charge to the general public. He said he hoped Saturday's event and those scheduled for June 9, Sept. 8 and Oct. 13 will be as successful as those in past years.

Bike Days is supported by Rev. Robert Law (R-Livonia), local communities, and area fund-raising organizations as a public service.

Memorial poppies on sale

Memorial poppies will be sold May 17 and 18 in the New Boston-Waltz area by members of Huron Valley Unit 231 of the American Legion Auxiliary and volunteer workers.

As in past years, the familiar, bright red paper poppies are made by hospitalized veterans in hospitals and convalescent workshops maintained by the American Legion Auxiliary. Making the poppies provides veterans with extra spending money and proves to be a source of psychological therapy.

Proceeds of Poppy Day will be used by the Huron Valley Unit to aid needy veterans and their families, both in the local community and throughout the state.

Chairman of the Poppy Day sale is Flora Dierdorf.

Man killed in city crash

Traffic crashes continue to take their toll in Romulus, with the latest accident last Wednesday claiming the life of a 37-year-old Mt. Clemens man.

Dead on arrival at 7 p.m. May 2 at Wayne County General Hospital was Evan H. Russell.

The car driven by the deceased was struck broadside on the driver's side as it pulled onto Wickham Road from the south parking lot of the Ramada Inn, according to the Wayne County Sheriff's Department.

A passenger in Russell's car, Frank Rhoback, 35, of Montville, N.J., also was hurt and taken to the same hospital where he was admitted for treatment.

Driver of the other car, Timothy M. Howell, 18, of Willis, suffered a broken right arm and was taken to Beyer Memorial Hospital, Ypsilanti, the report by patrolmen Dave Paternia and George Wesson stated.

Det. Jimmy Cranford said the crash is still under investigation. No citations had been issued as of press time Monday.

The crash last Wednesday makes five in Romulus in which fatalities have occurred during the last two months, police said.

Paint available for cleanup

Romulus Neighborhood Center employee Sue Kemp stands poised with paint brush in hand beside the large amount of paint being made available to low-income and elderly Romulus residents as part of this year's city-wide clean up campaign sponsored by the Romulus Beautification Committee. Starting the week of May 12, 1979, 1,000 gallons of house paint, purchased through a community development block grant program, will be available at Steers Hardware, 15031 Middlebelt Rd., to any Romulus resident who verifies certain income levels at the Neighborhood Center located at 28327 Leroy. Following a thorough check by Mrs. Kemp, a certificate will be issued to the applicant redeemable for paint at the nearby hardware store. For further details, call 941-1390. Campaign Finance Act

Republican Caucus proposal would close loopholes

Legislation designed to close the loopholes in Michigan's Campaign Finance Act has been introduced in the Michigan Senate by the Senate Republican Caucus.

Chief sponsor of the bill is Senate Republican Leader Robert VanderLaan of Kentwood and Senator bill Sederburg of East Lansing authored the measure.

"The goal of our legislation is to enact an explicit, strong, and enforceable Campaign Finance Act for Michigan," VanderLaan explained. "As the previous election so clearly demonstrated, the present act is too vague, weak, and has been virtually unenforced. It left the door open for both intentional and unconscious violations which we believe can be avoided in the future by correcting the deficiencies in the present law."

"Passage of our bill will significantly tighten up the statute and thereby guarantee the people of our state the right to know who — and how much — is being contributed to candidates in Michigan and, in effect, who represents the strong influences on public policy in our state," he emphasized.

Sederburg, a newcomer to the Senate this year, is a former Ingham County commissioner who, during his service in local government, drafted a comprehensive Code of Ethics for Ingham County public officials.

Sederburg emphasized that the bill is not intended to place unreasonable restrictions upon the political activities of any particular individual or group, but to assure that campaign activities are conducted properly and openly both by candidates for public office and their supporters.

"This complex law was utilized for the first time in the 1978 election. Our bill addresses the glaring loopholes which become obvious as we saw how the law worked in real life," Sederburg noted. "Our desire is to close these loopholes so that no individual or group is allowed, either on purpose or by accident, to circumvent the original intent of campaign finance reform — namely to open campaign practices to public scrutiny."

Specifically, the measure contains the following major amendments to the Campaign Finance Act which would:

- Prohibit the creation of more than one political action committee at the same level and disallow the transfer of funds between independent committees;
- Prohibit the use of officeholder expense funds for political contributions to candidate committees;
- Require disclosure of the names of the organizers and administrators, in addition to those of treasurers, of political action committees, thereby eliminating anonymous committees;
- Require reporting of expenditures exceeding $250 for internal partisan communications, such as mailings, telephone banks, etc., by committees, as currently required by federal law for communications over $2,000;
- Prohibit the use of campaign funds for routine living expenses of candidates which would be incurred regardless of candidacy;
- Define clearly the boundaries of the term "contribution" to assure that contributors are assured of their rights of refusal and that all contributions are voluntarily donated;
- Establish guidelines for the prompt issuance of all declaratory rulings by the Secretary of State regarding questionable contributions or complaints; and
- Increase penalties and remove the cap on fines for late filing of pre-election campaign finance statements.

TIM KATONA

Katona to discuss training horses

Tim Katona of Bemis Road, Belleville, will be the featured guest speaker for the Romulus Horseman's Association May 16 meeting.

Katona will speak on training the show horse and the methods he has developed for exhibiting the Appaloosa horse. Katona's trained horses have excelled in halter, pleasure and reining competition through national levels. He is a veteran of the Wayne County 4-H system and a firm believer in youth involvement with horses.

The Appaloosa is the world's oldest identified breed, the pride of ancient monarchs of Europe and Asia and the favored war mount of the American Nez Perce Indians. Like snow-flakes, no two Appaloosa coat patterns are alike, making each Appaloosa an "easy to see" individual. Coat patterns vary from those with white-blanketed hips to roans and leopards. The other distinguishing characteristics are white around the eye, like a human, striped hoofs and mottled skin. Today the Appaloosa is the third most popular breed of horse in America.

The May 16 meeting will start at 7:30 p.m. at Romulus City Hall, 1111 S. Wayne Road, Romulus. There is no charge, and visitors are welcome. For more information call 595-0966.

Bakery to feature homemade recipes

A new bakery featuring homemade doughnuts and several varieties of old-fashioned bread, all made from handed down family recipes, will open its doors in Romulus on Friday, May 25.

Romulus Home Bakery will be located at 12115 Huron River Dr. and will be owned and operated by Mrs. Betty Rzemala. She said a ribbon cutting at 2:30 p.m. on May 25 will mark the official opening of her new bakery.

She said her baked goods would all be made from natural ingredients and would not contain preservatives or coloring.

Specialty of the Romulus Home Bakery will be Scotch bread baked in wooden frames as in olden days. Also featured will be all types of old-fashioned bread such as oatmeal and potato, Polish cheesecake, homemade doughnuts and many kinds of pastries.

Mrs. Rzemala will be assisted in operating the new business by her nephew, Dan Phillips, who will be head baker, and her son, Alan Hindman, who will work on a part-time basis.

The bakery's location formerly was the site of a beauty parlor. Hours for the bakery will be from 5:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. daily, Monday through Saturday, the new owner said.

She said most of the old recipes used in making the bakery's goods were handed down from generation to generation on both she and her husband's side of the family.

Thurston R. Jahr to retire after 45 years as architect

After 45 years spent in the practice of architecture, Thurston R. Jahr, AIA, member of an old Dearborn family, is announcing his retirement as president of Jahr Associates, Inc., an architectural firm located on Michigan Avenue since 1945.

He has been a resident of Belleville since 1955, and has been the architect for several schools in Belleville.

He designed the renovation and addition to the Belleville High School, the North Junior High School, the South Junior High School, the Elwell Elementary School, the Tyler Road School, and the Savage Road School.

He has received local and national recognition for designs of schools, churches, libraries, general commercial and industrial buildings. His work has been featured in publications of the American Institute of Architects, national architectural magazines, and construction industry publications.

Specializing in school architecture, he was the recipient of a national award of excellence in Anaheim, Calif. for the expansion and remodeling of the Roosevelt High School, Wyandotte.

Jahr received a certificate of architectural merit and an 'Award of Excellence' in the field of architecture by school business officials meeting in national convention at Dallas, Tex. This award was given for the design of the Wayne Memorial High School, Wayne, Mich.

He also received an award for the John Glenn High School in Westland, given by the Portland Cement Association in 'Operation Detroit, A Proud Renaissance.'

He has served as architect and engineer for many school districts throughout the state of Michigan. Among these are Dearborn, Dearborn Township, Ypsilanti, Belleville, Romulus, Sumpter Township, Gibraltar, Trenton, Wyandotte, Southgate, Livonia, Wayne-Westland, Farmington, Oak Park, Huron Township, Ferndale, Huntington Woods, Hazel Park, Berkley, Midland, Imlay City, Romeo, St. Clair, Clinton, and Woodhaven.

Many of his school designs have been selected for exhibit at national conventions of the American Association of School Administrators.

His firm designed the original campus of the Henry Ford Community College on Michigan Avenue and Wyoming. The new fine arts building, now under construction at the campus on Hubbard Drive, is an example of Jahr Associates' recent work.

In addition, Jahr designed the main Dearborn Post Office, the Dearborn Southwest Library, and the Wayne Library. He planned the Ferguson Tractor Plant on Southfield Road, and has done work for the Briggs Manufacturing Co. and for the Ford Motor Co. in Massachusetts, Tennessee, and Virginia.

At the summer conference of the Michigan Society of Architects at Mackinac Island in 1966, he was given the 'Arkie' Award as architect of the year by the Portland Cement Association.

In 1952, he was selected 'Man of the Year' by The Dearborn Press.

Coming to Dearborn in 1922, Jahr is a third generation builder. His father, Henry Jahr, supervised the construction of many buildings in this area in the 1920s, among them, the Dearborn National Bank Building, the Calvin Theatre Building, the Schaefer Building, as well as several schools. He was treasurer of the old Henry Ford School District School Board for 17 years, a board on which Henry Ford also served. The family lived on Westland Avenue, which backed up to the old Korte farm.

He attended a two-room school, which was located on the site of the present Ford World Headquarters, and later started high school at the old Miller School in Springwells. He was one of 45 students to graduate from the new Fordson High School in 1929, and has the distinction of being the first graduate of that school to become an architect.

In 1934, he received a B.S. in architecture from the University of Michigan College of Architecture, and secured his first job with Bennett and Straight, Architects, in Dearborn.

During the war years, he was consulting engineer on the development of large timber structures for the armed services, designing and supervising the construction of air hangars.

In 1945, he organized his own architectural firm under the name of T. R. Jahr Associates. This later became Jahr-Lyman Associates, and then Jahr-Anderson Associates.

In 1950, the firm built their new office building, located on Michigan near Greenfield, and later received a Dearborn City Beautiful Award for their landscaping.

He is a past member of the Dearborn Planning Commission, the committee to rewrite the Dearborn Building Code, chairman of the Dearborn Hospital Commission, the board of directors of American Arbitration Association. He is a past president of the University of Michigan Alumni Club of Dearborn. He is a charter member of the Dearborn Elks, former member of Dearborn Kiwanis, and the Dearborn Players Guild.

He is an active member of the American Institute of Architects, the Michigan Society of Architects, the Construction Specifications Institute, and the American Concrete Institute.

He and his wife, the former Marjorie Lincoln, a Dearborn and Belleville school teacher, have been married 42 years, and are the parents of three children; Jeffrey, a Westland lawyer; Jonathan, an interior designer in Birmingham; and Mary, a speech pathologist in Owosso.

The present firm of Jahr Associates will continue under the leadership of Kenn Eilers, AIA, a Dearborn native; and George Craven, AIA, who have been with the firm for 18 years. Jahr will remain with the firm as consultant.

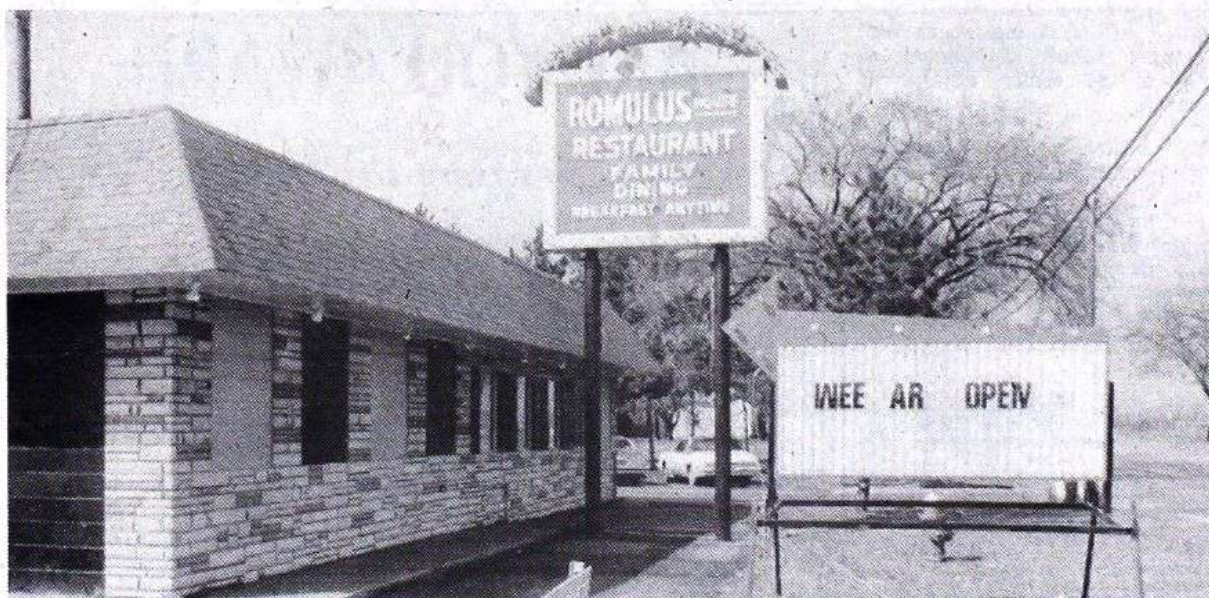

He will be guest of honor at a retirement party hosted by Kenn Eilers and George Craven at the Detroit Plaza Hotel on Friday, May 11.

leader award which honors high school leadership activities. All four students had a minimum 3.0 grade point average. (Photo by John Palmer and John Wegienka, vocational education students at RHS.)

Local restaurant changes hands

A familiar eating spot for residents of the Romulus area at 9110 S. Wayne Rd. is now under new ownership. Romulus House Restaurant opened April 2 under the ownership of Alex Bokos, of Livonia, who had operated a restaurant in Detroit for several years. The Wayne Road location formerly had been known as the Snack Time Restaurant. The Romulus House has been remodeled and the kitchen outfitted with new equipment. It will feature American type food with a selection of Greek dishes. Customers can choose from a menu which includes barbecued ribs, chicken, steaks, prime rib, shish kabob, cold plates, homemade soups and Greek salads. Also featured will be a special children's menu. Business hours of the Romulus House will be from 6 a.m. to 10 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 7 a.m. to 10 p.m. on Sunday.

new "subsidiary" developments will follow the original construction of the entertainment park along nearby expressways.

The special court-ordered public hearing will center on details and is expected to provide answers to the following complaints made by park detractors:

1-Details of Phases 2 and 3 are not detailed even though they appear to be an integral part of the overall plan;

2- Site plan does not provide adequate buffers to residents living nearby;

3- Site plan does not mention location of, nor provide inspection, for ancillary services such as gasoline stations, motels, etc.;

4- Site plan fails to provide for disposal of wastewater services in view of the nearby Flat Rock disposal plant already being overloaded;

5- Site plan fails to provide for adequate police and fire protection;

6- Site plan will impede residential development in the area;

7- Site plan does not provide for rezoning and special approvals of ancillary services.

Commenting on complaints that the entertainment park's developers had not outlined where such ancillary services as motels would be located, Mrs. Carey said, "I don't believe it is right to expect Space World to designate where motels are to be located."

"Development brings development. Subsidiary services will follow major development and will locate where it will work out to be the best advantage of everyone concerned."

Maybe Day is Saturday

The Village of Maybee will play host to visitors from many parts of southeastern Michigan on Saturday, during its second annual Downtown Maybee Day.

Merchants, organizations and service groups will have sidewalk sales, food stands, entertainment and game booths.

Antiques, country store items, arts and crafts, home-baked goods and 1973 Maybee centennial items will highlight the flea market, where spaces are still available at $5 by contacting Loretta Homrich at 587-3700.

There will be clowns and free candy to delight children and complimentary coffee and doughnuts, provided by merchants.

The Village of Maybee can be found by taking Sumpter Road to Bluebush Road and turning right into the village.

The Belleville-Romulus residents are degree candidates at the University of Michigan-Dearborn.

Up for a master of science degree in mechanical engineering is Gregory J. Galambos of Denton Road, Belleville, while Patricia L. Miller of Sterling, Romulus, is slated to receive her bachelor of arts degree.

The Office of Admissions at Wayne State University has awarded a four-year full tuition scholarship to Belleville resident Dennis Corder. Corder received the scholarship on the basis of a 3.6 or better grade point average and superior SAT & ACT scores.

Teens need SS card

Students who plan to get a summer job should apply now for a Social Security number, if they don't have one, according to Social Security officials.

The general guideline is to apply for the number several weeks before it is needed for a job, covered by Social Security. Frequently, employers require a new employee to have a Social Security number before beginning work. Officials say it takes several weeks for an application to be processed, since it must be screened against central files to make sure a second number isn't issued to the same person.

More than nine out of 10 jobs are covered by Social Security.

A Social Security number is assigned to one person and remains the same for life. Officials say since retirement, disability, survivors, and Medicare protection is credited to the Social Security number, it is important the employer copies the name and number correctly from the Social Security card to employee records.

Information about applying for a Social Security number is available by calling, writing, or visiting any Social Security office. Persons applying for a Social Security number for the first time will be asked to prove their age, identity and citizenship.

A lost Social Security card can be replaced by contacting any Social Security office.

Persons 18 or older who are applying for a number for the first time must apply in person. Applications for a duplicate card now are required to have evidence of identity.

The best evidence of age and citizenship is a birth certificate recorded shortly after birth.

80 positions available

CETA funds finance vocational education

If they only knew about it, many Wayne County residents are eligible for vocational training that will help them enter careers with upward mobility patterns.

More than 80 training slots currently are open to qualified persons who live in Wayne County, but not in Livonia, and who meet other screening criteria.

Trainees will receive the minimum wage for the time they attend this federally funded training. If they qualify, applicants can select training as a welder, drafter, industrial engineer, machinist, tool inspector, electronic technician, industrial equipment repair, diesel engine mechanic and drive train mechanic.

Vocational training programs are administered through Chrysler Learning Inc. and funded by the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act.

"If qualified people who need and are interested in this training were aware of its existence, they could then be enrolled in most programs and have money plus be well on their way to a meaningful career by the early part of the summer," said Robert Hubbard, a program supervisor.

As with most federal programs, certain guidelines have to be met.

For one thing, those considered must be able to prove residency in Wayne County, excluding Livonia. They must also meet federal income criteria and be low income, unemployed, or underemployed. Age is no factor, except for a minimum of 18; and applicants are chosen without regard to race or sex.

According to Hubbard, the training seems best suited for:

— The unemployed person with few skills who wants to study a specific field, but can't afford college programs in terms of time or money.

— The person who is a single parent and needs some income while training for a future career.

— Minorities who typically have a hard time breaking into today's job market at meaningful levels.

— The woman who has spent much of her life caring for a family and now, perhaps alone, finds herself in need of work and training. Employers typically tell her "You don't qualify."

— Persons with GEDs, who find they need accredited training to get jobs in today's competitive market.

— The college drop-out now trying to make it on his or her own.

Romulus High's 'Road Scholars' take on trouble

A pair of "Road Scholars" from Romulus Senior High School have been selected to represent the school at the state finals of the annual Plymouth Trouble Shooting Contest at Troy on May 16.

Paul Lewkowicz, 18, of Grant Road, Romulus, and Steve Losacco, 17, of Gloria, Romulus, won the honor on the basis of the high scores they registered at written examinations, which were held regionally throughout Michigan on April 3.

"The Trouble Shooting Contest is an annual competition which recognizes the nation's outstanding high school student mechanics and honors the best of them with more than $250,000 in scholarships and prizes," E. L. Sheffield, principal of Romulus High School, said. "We at Romulus are proud of them and will be at the contest to cheer them on."

State champions win expense-paid trips to the national finals at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway June 17-20. The contest brings together teams from all 50 states to match their knowledge and technical dexterity against each other.

At the national finals, $21,500 in scholarships are awarded to the top 10 teams, including $5,000 to the first-place finishers. The national champs also will be awarded expense-paid trips to Washington, D.C., and San Francisco, where they will compete against teams from Mexico and Canada for the North American title.

During the year, the U.S. champions also will make appearances on behalf of Chrysler-Plymouth and its dealers to encourage students with mechanical aptitude to enter the challenging field of automotive service.

Economists agree

Year-end is tagged as start of economic downturn

By CARRIE YOUNG
ANP Staff Writer

Recession. "Ooh, that sounds so bad, and depressing."

Downturn was much preferred by Martin Rauscher when describing what he termed to be the inevitable for 1979 year-end.

Rauscher, vice-president of the Michigan Chamber of Commerce, said recession, although synonymous to downturn, provided too much of a sting. Even slump was preferred over recession.

But economic blow-out, a term recently flaunted by Canton Township Trustee Robert Greenstein, was simply unheard of. It proved to be potent enough to send Rauscher into a choking spell.

Economists and market watchers interviewed by Associated Newspapers in recent weeks agreed that the United States is destined for rougher, slower times.

None agreed as to why, or how to avoid economic perils, but all forecasted a gloomy picture.

Time? Most interviewed, including Greenstein, look to the end of the year for the acute economic pinch to be felt.

"It's just one of those things. Everyone seems to be looking to the end of 1979. I'm not at all sure as to why," said Rick Johnson, assistant director of public relations for National Bank of Detroit.

Terms like crunch, squeeze, pinch and contracting economy were plucked out of textbooks for descriptive purposes.

But whatever one prefers to term it, the effect will be the same.

Recession will mean fewer jobs available, less spendable income for capital expenditures, such as washers and dryers. People will be making do with their current autos, and layoffs will be a way of life for many.

And in Michigan, a highly productive state, the impact of a downturn in the economy will be felt sharpest and longer than in the other 49 states, according to Rauscher.

"Even if we apply the brakes now, it will not stop the inevitable. Besides no one can agree on how to apply the brakes," Rauscher noted.

Predicting an even gloomier picture than a downturn, Greenstein foresees a possible near economic collapse.

The local politician cites a 50-year economic cycle as one reason for looking to 1979 as the year of the predicted fall-out.

"In 1889 came the first huge depression, then 1929 and that leaves us with 1979," he said.

Another warning signal Greenstein said was the implementation of voluntary wage controls which usually lead to mandatory controls, including price ceilings.

"It's artificial. Wage and price controls will lock us into certain wages and prices, but without any control on raw materials imported from other countries," he said. "It's the beginning of the end. "All of a sudden when people start missing products, because manufacturers won't be able to produce with the controls, then you'll see panic."

Wage and price guidelines only repress inflation, rather than solve it, said two economists interviewed.

"Never before has one single factor been able to bring the economy to a collapse, now we have several," Greenstein said.

Latest reports have the end-of-March quarterly inflation rate at its highest in the past four years.

According to Greenstein, and confirmed by a Wayne State University economist, inflation is a form of taxation and is the prime culprit for "throwing the country out of kilter."

Relieving the country of its nagging inflation could quite possibly result in a serious recession, according to David Fand, WSU economist on a special leave of absence in Washington, D.C.

Fand said Greenstein's theories were open to much criticism and pigeonholing. But said inflation must be battled, regardless of side effects to the economy.

"It could mean a recession, but it's really gotten hard to read the thermometer. No one knows how to predict in the traditional way because inflation has changed all the meaning of the data we deal with," Fand said.

Greenstein suggests persons begin to read more about economic events and to prepare for the worst.

Fand disagrees. He believes that what will be, will be. And, in his opinion, preparation will do no good.

"Besides people never do what's good for them anyway," he said.

Local financial institutions also are beginning to feel a slight pinch, Greenstein noted.

"This is unheard of, but banks now are encouraging people to take out short-term home mortgage loans, and they're even offering discounts on interest rates to get them to go for five-year loans instead of the normal 30-year," he said.

Both officials from Manufacturers Bank and National Bank of Detroit admitted that there has been a shift in their economic outlook. Short-term loans are encouraged to "protect ourselves," Johnson said.

"With the inflation rate as it is, if we loan someone on a fixed rate basis, what they'll be paying us in interest in the next 10 years or so won't be nearly what they should because of the inflated dollar. We will be losing," Johnson said. "But that doesn't mean we believe there will be an economic collapse, far from it. We're just being prudent in our affairs."

If for a moment persons could remove themselves from actual state of affairs to an ideal state, Greenstein theorized the "hows" and "whens" to pull the country out of its bleak condition.

First, he said, he would make it illegal for landowners to sell any real estate to foreign neighbors.

Next, he would seriously, "not cowardly," insist on a balanced budget.

House ed panel reports out '79 school aid plan

A $1,532.6 million measure to fund the public schools of Michigan during the 1979-80 fiscal year was reported out of the House Education Committee, according to Rep. Tom Brown (D-37th District) a member of the House Committee on Education.

The bill represents a $62.1 million increase over the current 1978-79 funding level and is $25.4 million above Gov. William Milliken's 1979-80 Executive Budget recommendations.

"The Education Committee proposal improved upon the Governor's basic state aid formula recommendation by $13.4 million," Rep. Brown noted. "In addition, we recommended $23 million in special assistance to districts with declining enrollment — $1.9 million more than the Executive Budget proposal."

The Education Committee worked out a new $2.5 million provision for state funding of transportation for children who live within the traditional 1½-mile limit, but are faced with unsafe routes when walking to school.

"This is a problem that has been before us repeatedly in the past," Brown said. "Hopefully, we have worked out a solution that will resolve this difficulty."

The committee also increased special funding for gifted-children programs from the current $500,000 level to $750,000 — $200,000 above the $550,000 recommended by the Governor.

The Executive Budget contained a "standstill" $13.2 million recommendation for Intermediate school districts, which the Committee increased to $14.2 million.

In addition to raising state funding of Vocational Education from $26 million to $29.526 million, the Education Committee added a special $500,000 provision for state assistance with the purchase of needed Vocational Education equipment.

State funding of Special Education for Handicapped Pupils was raised from $122.1 million to $131.088 million, while Compensatory Education for underachievers increased from $30.7 million to $32.25 million.

Special "Municipal Overburden" funding for districts with high non-school property tax rates rose from $32 to $34 million, while funding of bilingual programs for non-English-speaking children was increased from $4 million to $4.5 million.

"I look upon the committee's recommendation as a very responsible proposal and as the minimal effort the state must make, if we are to preserve our basic school programs," Representative Brown concluded. "I hope very much that these recommendations can be preserved in the final budgeting process."

The state school aid bill will now be considered by the House Committee on Appropriations.

Court order delays layoffs of county hospital firemen

Part of a cost reduction by the Wayne County Board of Commissioners that would eliminate the fire fighting unit at the County General Hospital in Westland has been delayed by a Circuit Court restraining order.

The jobs of 10 firemen are involved. They are among a total of 30 positions throughout various county departments and agencies that the board ordered dropped from the payroll on April 29. The firemen, however, all members of the International Association of Fire Fighters, AFL-CIO, filed suit on April 26, and Judge James A. Hathaway ordered their positions maintained until a hearing before Judge George T. Martin on May 4.

In their suit the firemen claim a violation of State Statute 312, which they claim prohibits changes in collective bargaining units during arbitration. The firemen filed for arbitration when their 3-year contract expired in November.

County Assistant Corporation Counsel Edward Douglas charged the firemen with misuse of the intent of Act 312, which he said was established to prevent police and firemen from strikes that would jeopardize public safety. Douglas pointed out that, although the fire fighters filed for arbitration, they did not pursue the usual procedure toward selection of an arbitration panel to decide a wage dispute.

"The obvious truth," Douglas said, "is that they are using threat as a tactic to preserve a situation that they knew was meant to be abolished. They knew when county budget deliberations began last year that a fire fighting unit at the hospital would not continue.

"They also knew that the hospital administration was engaged in discussion with Westland, and that the city is prepared to assume its statutory responsibility for any fires on the hospital grounds."

The hospital is located within city limits of Westland which also maintains a firehouse no more than a half mile from the hospital, according to County Board Chairman Richard E. Manning.

Manning said the proposed job eliminations are not a threat to health and safety of patients, but that maintenance of an "in-house fire department" is a factor in the cost of daily room rates.

"Attempts to dispose of this unit simply reflect a decision of the Board of Commissioners and the hospital cost-containment committee to bring costs in line with similar operations elsewhere," Manning emphasized. "The cost containment program is trying desperately to reduce or do away with every operation that impacts directly on the cost of patient care.

"In our attempts to achieve a balanced budget, we've just had to take a necessary step. Our hospital fire unit was established long before Westland was incorporated, perhaps more than 25 years ago, when firemen on the premises were absolutely necessary and also gave protection to surrounding communities."

"The hospital is probably the only hospital in the entire state equipped with a complete standing fire unit on its own grounds. It is a luxury we can no longer afford," Manning added.

Even without the fire fighters, Manning stressed, the hospital will continue fire prevention training and other safety programs for patient security and is making "every effort" to provide jobs for the firemen in other departments.

VA center goes direct

It is estimated that in the United States alone, some 8 to 12 million people have experimented with drugs at least once. Occasionally, these people become medical emergencies and require first aid treatment.

Diagnosis of an overdose of drugs is a professional judgement which can only be made by a physician. But in a medical emergency, when drugs are suspected, the following steps should be taken while awaiting professional assistance.

- (1) If the person is conscious, observe him constantly.
- (2) If the person is unconscious, keep him under constant watch, observe pulse and respiration carefully. Maintain an airway.

- (3) If breathing stops, give artificial respiration.
- (4) Maintain him in a quiet, non-threatening place if person is hyperactive. Remain patient, sympathetic, and restrain him only if necessary to keep him from injuring himself.

(5) If a person shows signs of being out of contact with reality (hearing voices, seeing images, etc.) try talking quietly to relieve the apprehension and anxiety.

- (6) Check for physical injuries.

Overdoses: What can you do?

Effective May 7, the VA Medical Center in Allen Park will change over to direct dial service for the outpatient appointment desk. It will no longer be necessary to call the VA switchboard to reach the appointment desk.

The new number for the appointment desk is 561-9520.

This new direct dial system will be answered electronically and hold each call in priority sequence until the clerical personnel can assist the veteran with an appointment. During the "hold" period the caller will hear music and "mini-messages" which assist the caller in being prepared for the receptionist.

It is not necessary to call for an appointment for an initial visit to the VA Medical Center. Eligible veterans may report to the outpatient clinic any time Monday through Friday 8 to 4:30 and be evaluated by a physician. Also, veterans who have not been seen there by a physician in a year or more do not need an appointment. They will be seen on a walk-in basis, too.

IS A TRADITIONAL SERVICE NEEDED

It is — if we are to retain the dignity and pride as set by our national character.

It was Blackstone, the noted English statesman, who put it so well when he said: "Show me the manner in which a nation or community cares for its dead and I will measure with mathematical exactness the tender sympathies of its people, their respect for the law of the land, and their loyalty to high ideals."

Whole nations are saddened and go into mourning when their leaders die. Recently, the United States mourned one of its favorite senators, Minnesota's Hubert H. Humphrey — whose traditional and full-service funeral was of national significance.

On Memorial Day and Veterans Day and to render tribute to national leaders who have died, we fly our American flags at half-staff. We observe these traditions with patriotic and religious ceremonies. They, are, in effect, national funeral ceremonies, indicates Dr. Arthur Freese ("Help for your grief" 1977). He feels these national rituals periodically help our country deal with death, and we agree.

We will be glad to discuss this in detail with you.

H.F. Campbell survives Depression, war

After 50 years

Fred J. Brune (left) and H. Fred Campbell discuss the executive proclamation, issued by Michigan Gov. William Milliken, recognizing the 50th anniversary of the H.F. Campbell Co. Campbell, currently the firm's chairman of the board, founded the company in 1929 as a local house and building moving concern. It has evolved into one of the nation's leading one-stop design and build firms. Brune joined the firm in 1932 when his own company — William Brune and Son Building Moving Engineers — merged with the growing Campbell organization. He currently is vice-president of H.F. Campbell.

Chicago was still getting over the horrors of the St. Valentine's Day Massacre; Washington was preparing for the inauguration of Herbert Hoover; and New York's great stock market crash was still several months away.

In Detroit, a young, 22-year old man, vitalized with a dream and capitalized with $1,100 in cash, decided that this was an opportune moment to launch his own business, and the H. F. Campbell Company was born.

Prohibition gangsterism has long since subsided and eight American presidents have come and gone in the interim, but the H. F. Campbell Company still is doing business in Detroit. And H. Fred Campbell still is directing the efforts of that organization just as he has since its founding 50 years ago in February 1929.

The company has come a long way from that bleak February a half century ago when Fred Campbell first rented space in the Al Ternes Coal and Lumber Yard at Michigan and Military, but the exuberance and vitality of its founder has not waned a bit during the intervening years.

The H. F. Campbell Company, the oldest of five firms that comprise the Campbell Group, has progressed from a building moving concern that originally employed three people and kept it s production records neatly written on a rolled-down windowshade into an international design and build firm that uses the latest computer technology to keep track of its construction projects for the giants of American industry.

Fred Campbell, a longtime Belleville resident, initially thought that he might become a lawyer, but a student survey in the mid-20s convinced him that too many of his classmates also were intent on this same goal. Seeking a less crowded career field, Campbell enrolled in the University of Michigan School of Architecture, hoping to capitalize on the masonry, carpentry and design experience he had gained during summer employment with local contractors.

A semester later, illness forced him to withdraw from school and he entered into the construction business with his uncle. His ability to learn the trade from experience held him in good stead as he gained the acumen that would be needed a short time later when he was to launch his own business venture.

Campbell noted that his opportunities in the family-run business were being constrained, so he decided to forge off on his own. He sold out his share of the business and with this $1,100 capitalization he opened his own firm in February 1929. It appears that he learned his business lessons well because he

Summer therapy aids handicapped children

An intensive therapy program to enable speech and language handicapped children continue the progress they make during the school year will be offered this summer by the Oakwood Hospital Speech Pathology Department.

"They need a bridge," said Karen Smillie, director of Oakwood's department. "They need a consistent, uninterrupted approach to help them maintain or achieve goals established during the school year."

The summer classes, restricted to 48 students ranging from preschool to the sixth grade, will run for eight weeks June 25 through August 17.

Three One-hour group sessions will be conducted in the mornings daily. Depending upon a child's type and severity of speech or language handicap, students will meet either three times a week on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays or twice a week on Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The tuition fee for the three-times-a-week sessions is $114, and for the twice-a-week classes, $76.

Application for the program consists primarily of a referral from the child's school speech therapist, providing a detailed assessment of the child's handicap. Deadline for applications is May 31.

Each group will have two to four children, according to Christine Sowinski, the summer program coordinator. A certified master's degree level speech pathologist, assisted by two graduate level interns, will conduct each class.

Articulation is the most common kind of speech disorder, according to Mrs. Sowinski. The child has difficulty with the way sounds are formed and strung together. Some of the characteristics include substituting one sound for another (wabbit instead of rabbit), omitting a sound (han for hand), and distorting a sound (shlip for sip).

A common language problem, Mrs. Sowinski said, is the child's inability to understand or express meaningful grammatical structures. Some children may "babble", she said, making unintelligible speechlike sounds.

Others have speech sounds that resemble a telegram. "They take shortcuts," said Mrs. Sowinski. "'Eat time now?' is their version of 'Is it time to eat now?' They forget the little words."

The involvement of parents is essential in the Oakwood summer program, said both Mrs. Smillie and Mrs. Sowinski. "Their attitude is important."

Conferences with each parent are held after the first four weeks to review the child's progress. A complete report is given to parents and forwarded to the child's school speech therapist at the end of the summer classes.

For more information, contact the Speech Pathology Department at 336-3000, ext. 517-8.

Things that matter

By GEORGE PLAGENZ
United Features Syndicate

A Harvard Medical School physician says prayer and relaxation can lower blood pressure, relieve anxiety and produce other healing effects.

He does not refer to this therapy technique as hypnosis. But relaxation and hypnosis are closely related, says The Rev. Donald Vittner, a counselor at the Parma Medical Center in Parma, Ohio, who uses hypnosis with many of his clients.

Vittner, a fundamentalist Christian who combines modern psychological counseling techniques with Bible-based pastoral counseling, disagrees with many of his evangelical colleagues who feel hypnosis is a "tool of Satan" or a form of "mind control." In the following interview (part one of which appears today), Vittner defends his belief in hypnosis as "one of the good things God has given us for our use."

Q: Isn't it true that hypnosis is a throwback to pre-scientific times when we didn't have the medical knowledge we have today?

A: Actually, interest in hypnosis has ebbed and flowed through the centuries. Before the advent of anesthesiology in the 19th century, hypnotism was used with good results in both major and minor surgery.

Then, when anesthetics came along, hypnosis went into one of its "ebb" phases. Now it is experiencing a resurgence.

Q: Still you have to agree that, with a lot of people in this scientific age hypnosis lacks "respectability."

A: This, I think, is largely the result of popular misconceptions which we have picked up from viewing "stage hypnosis," which is a prostitution of hypnosis for entertainment purposes.

Through the use of a few simple gimmicks, the skilled stage hypnotist can find a few gullible, exhibitionistic persons in the audience who will exaggerate his suggestions and help him to entertain the spectators.

Q: What about those who lump hypnosis with mind control, astrology, the ouija board and demonism?

A: At one time I too believed in all the distortions and misperceptions about hypnosis. Then, several years ago, I began studying books written by both medical and non-medical authorities on hypnosis. The scales of evangelical prejudice and superstition fell from my eyes.

Q: You speak of hypnosis as a heightened state of suggestibility. Doesn't this mean it is a form of thought control?

A: No. My contention is that hypnosis, meditation and relaxation are synonymous. Relaxation cannot make one do something he does not want to.

NEXT WEEK: How meditation is combined with relaxation to bring results in hypnosis. Also, how hypnosis is used to accomplish physical healings.

Congressman tells committee

Electronic banking cards: 'Game of roulette'

"Consumers with electronic banking cards should destroy them immediately," Congressman Frank Annunzio of Illinois recently told the House Banking Subcommittee on Consumer Affairs.

Annunzio issued that warning after both the American Bankers Association and the Federal Reserve Board testified in opposition to legislation that would move up the effective date of consumer protection legislation in the electronic funds transfer area.

Both also testified against a provision in the legislation that would make it easier for consumers to notify a financial institution in the event an EFT card was lost or stolen.

"Except in those states which have strong EFT laws, such as Wisconsin," explained Annunzio, "consumers will not be adequately protected until May 10, 1980, or until Congress passes legislation moving up that date. Until that time they are strapping themselves in a financial electric chair, if they use electronic banking services."

"Except for a few states, consumers are not being adequately protected in electronic banking situations. If consumers want to use these services, they will be doing it on their own and they will have no one to help them out, if they have a problem."

"The situation right now is a gigantic game of Russian Roulette. Consumers can use the card over and over again without any problems, but when that problem crops up it will be too late to get help."

"If Congress is successful in moving up the date of the consumer protections then it will mark an all clear signal for consumers," he added. "Until that time, or until May 10, 1980, the best advice I can give consumers is to cut their EFT cards up into small pieces and to notify the financial institution of the action. This will save consumers some possible grave financial difficulties in the future such as trying to resolve an error in their account, or to obtain a receipt for an electronic deposit."

Annunzio was particularly distressed at the Federal Reserve's position, especially since the Federal Reserve Board earlier had issued a regulation that would have increased consumer's liability for a lost or stolen credit card 1,000 percent. The board ruled that notification of a lost or stolen card would not be complete until it was received by the financial institution. This was in direct conflict with the EFT Act, which Annunzio authored and which stated that the notice would be complete when the consumer mailed a letter to the financial institution.

"Over the years I have gradually seen the Federal Reserve Board adopt more of an anti-consumer attitude. Now it is the most anti-consumer organization in America."

Next to the Federal Reserve Board, the U.S. Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers look like Ralph Nader-affiliated groups. I expected an anti-consumer position from the bankers, and I guess it was just too much to expect the banker's buddy, the Federal Reserve Board, to take a pro-consumer stand."

Nine win in lottery

Nine Western Wayne County residents are "in the money" after collecting $5,000 prizes in the Michigan Lottery's Royal Bingo instant game.

Hauling in the largest prize in the instant lottery game were Michael Bartel of Westland, Ralph Baum of Belleville, Richard Bell of Romulus, Valerie Lawrence of Inkster, John Mullins of Westland, Charles Peters of Inkster, William Shapman of Romulus, Ray Siler of Belleville and Lila Smith of Romulus.

On the instant tickets, the winners had to collect three Aces either across, up and down, or corner to corner on the ticket.

What's best way to save?

What's the best way to save money? Although there are people who might put their savings underneath the mattress or in a shoebox, most people take it to a financial institution of one kind or another, receiving interest on their account. Savings can be used for putting children through college, retirement or a major purchase somewhere down the line.

There are advantages and disadvantages to any type of savings plan. One vehicle to provide funds, a "life annuity," has many of the advantages of conventional savings plans without many of the disadvantages.

An annuity provides certain tax advantages, such as interest income not being taxable until received. Then, this income usually is taxed at a lower rate due to a lower tax bracket. Contributions can be made all at once or over a period of time, whichever suits the needs of the customer. Annuities also offer a guaranteed payout according to a predetermined schedule agreed upon between the customer and the insurance company.

Some disadvantages to traditional savings plans are that deposits are made from after-tax income. Interest income is taxable each year, and the interest rate can be less than the annual rate of inflation. Not only that, but if savings are planned to provide for retirement income, there is a possibility of "outliving" a savings account.

Perhaps the most unique feature of the annuity is that the "annuitant," or the individual who is covered by the plan, may purchase a provision called a "waiver of premium." It allows the customer to have contributions automatically paid when due, if he or she becomes disabled. This assures the annuitant that the plan will be funded on schedule in spite of the disability.

Other features of an annuity include:

— A settlement to the beneficiary of the plan in the event of death of the annuitant. The annuity may serve the customer in life or death.

— Annuities can create guaranteed retirement benefits which cannot be outlived.

— There are a wide variety of payout options at retirement.

— Upon death, the full current value of the policy may be paid directly to the beneficiary, avoiding the costs and delays of probate.

Many people who have received life insurance proceeds, insurance settlements or other large sums of money find that annuities give them years of guaranteed protection at set dollar amounts no matter how long they live.

Editorial opinions

Stoned drivers

The perils of the drunken driver are well known to law-enforcement officials and the public alike. A massive public-education drive has alerted people to the risks they incur when they drive under the influence of alcohol, and many states have inexpensive and legal roadside tests for establishing alcoholic intoxication. Drunk drivers frequently find their driving privileges revoked.

Yet comparable legal provisions to protect the public from drivers stoned on marijuana are in most states not in place — there are no cheap roadside tests to determine drug intoxication, and most pot smokers perceive their use of the drug as "relaxing," never dangerous.

They are wrong. "Persuasive evidence is mounting that such drivers (high on marijuana) often have a distorted sense of space and time, altered peripheral and central vision, and impaired manipulative and coordination skills."

There is consistent research findings that indicate marijuana smokers are over-represented in fatal highway accidents. In several studies — in Boston, Albuquerque, Baltimore and Oklahoma City — about 16 percent of drivers involved in accidents had been smoking marijuana prior to the event.

The first large-scale study linking marijuana to traffic arrests was completed by California's Department of Justice last year and revealed that of 1792 arrested drivers 16 percent had a sufficiently high level of THC, the chief mind-altering ingredient of marijuana, to constitute marijuana intoxication.

Incredibly, in one study, 25 percent of the pot smokers believed pot actually improved their coordination, while an equal number believed it has no effect on their driving.

An effective roadside test for marijuana intoxication is being prepared, but it is probably three or four years away from being ready.

In the meantime, there is action that can be taken to protect others from the menace of the pot-head driver. State legislatures should immediately pass laws imposing a high fine and/or other stiff penalty for possession of marijuana in a vehicle — including taxis, buses, trucks, trains and planes. Only Alaska and Minnesota have enacted such legislation, and most states are lax in enforcing marijuana-possession laws.

Secondly, the public must learn how dangerous driving "high" is. Perhaps it's time for a massive educational program sponsored by insurance companies, foundations, private groups and high-school and private-driving instructors.

We can only hope that growing awareness of the problem will prevent a national disaster.

Strawberry queen

It is time again to start thinking about who will become the '79 Belleville Strawberry Queen.

With the annual Strawberry Festival now gearing-up for an even bigger and better turnout, we at the Enterprise Roman are gearing-up again for the crowning of the Festival's Queen.

This year's queen contest and judging will be held at St. Anthony's Church, and a list of prominent people will be making that always difficult decision of who will wear the crown for the coming year.

Last year, our first involvement with the Festival, the Queen was selected from an exceptional group of young women. Judging was based on: how the girls handled themselves during the judging, their answers to questions presented by the Enterprise Roman, appearance, and poise.

While those guides will again be employed to decide on this year's winner, a new twist will be added.

Since the Strawberry is 'King' during the Strawberry Festival, it is only appropriate that the strawberry should also play a part in determining the winner of the contest.

For that reason, each of the finalists in the 'Queen Contest' will be asked to provide our judges with a dish prepared by themselves, featuring, 'King Strawberry.'

No restrictions will be placed on the kind of dish, but the dish must utilize strawberries as the main ingredient. We would hope that the girls would provide an original recipe, but that will not be a requirement.

Below is an entry form for use by the young ladies who may wish to participate in this year's contest. If possible, we would also like a recent photo.

In addition, we would like each of the young women who enter the contest to provide us with the name of a person who could serve as an escort during the many activities throughout the year where the queen will be involved.

Each girl will be asked to answer the following five questions during the judging:

Do you think the Strawberry Festival is good for the community?

If you could do one thing to improve the community, what would that be?

What can you do as a resident of the Belleville-Van Buren area to encourage community pride?

Have you found any advantages in living in the Belleville-Van Buren area that other areas might not provide?

So there it is. All that is necessary to possibly represent your community as the Belleville Strawberry Festival Queen.

The rest is up to you.

Bills to affect drivers

By EDUARDE E. MAHALAK
State Representative
38th District

The House has taken action to give local governments expanded powers to set their own speed limits within school zones.

The same bill, which has been sent to the Senate, would lower the statewide maximum speed in school zones before, during and after school hours from the present 25 to 20 miles an hour.

While the statewide speed limit for school zones is currently 25 miles an hour, local governments can set their own speed limits, if they so desire.

However, neither the state speed limit or local limits apply to state trunkline highways that pass through school zones.

Rather, when school zones are located on state trunkline (major) highways, speed limits are set by a board composed of representatives of the State Police and local police, the school district, the county road commission and/or the State Department of Transportation.

There have been complaints that these boards are not always responsive to local needs and that, as a result, some school children walk to and from school under unsafe conditions.

There have been cases of local residents and local governments futilely asking state authorities to reduce speed limits on major highways that run through school zones. However, if a state analysis of traffic on a trunkline highway does not scientifically establish the usefulness of a reduction in speed, then state engineers will not recommend it, regardless of how urgently local residents plead their case.

It can be argued that when local people fear for the safety of their children, they should not be denied the limited reassurance of lower speed limits by experts who base their opinions purely on technical information.

The bill would apply the state maximum and local speed limits to the trunkline highways.

Most of Michigan's neighboring states authorize a lower school zone speed limit than our 25 miles an hour. In those states where the school zone limit is 15 to 20 miles an hour, police report that actual speeds, while they may not be held at the legal limit, are substantially reduced. Generally they are 10 to 15 miles over the posted limit.

There is no reason to believe that the same is not true in Michigan, which is a strong argument for lowering our school zone limits to 20 miles an hour. It may be that the average motorist may not travel at that speed, but he is likely to travel at a slower rate of speed than he would under a 25-mile-an-hour speed limit.

The bill was one of several traffic-related measures approved by the House.

One of them was a resolution adopted by the Legislature, asking Congress to adjust the federal 55-mile-an-hour speed limit to fit the metric system.

Under this proposal, the speed limit would be switched to 100 kilometers (61 miles an hour) on interstate highways and 80 kilometers (49 miles an hour) on other roads.

The 55-mile-an-hour speed limit was passed by Congress in 1974 as an energy conservation measure. The Michigan Legislature complied with the federal requirements in 1975. Since the lower speed limit went into effect, it is estimated that Michigan has saved 51 million gallons of gasoline annually.

Congress in 1975 passed legislation which set a national goal of conversion to the metric system. The resolution adopted by the Legislature would be in line with that goal. It is estimated by the Michigan Energy Administration that the change to 100 and 80 kilometers would result in still more overall fuel conservation in the state and nation.

Another resolution adopted by the House and sent to the Senate urges the federal government not to carry out a proposed plan to restrict or prohibit Sunday gasoline sales, pointing out that it would be highly damaging to Michigan's economy.

The proposal is seen as one way to conserve motor fuel.

It would, however, be very harmful to Michigan's important tourist industry.

Travel and tourism generate more tax revenue in Michigan than in all but four other states in the nation. The state's second largest industry, tourism is a major producer of jobs and state and local tax revenues. It has a powerful impact on the Michigan economy.

Restrictions on Sunday sale of gasoline would have a damaging effect on the estimated 35,500 Michigan establishments directly connected with travel and tourism.

The resolution notes that drastic reductions in Sunday travel in Michigan would have far less benefit in terms of fuel conservation than restrictions imposed during a normal business day, and that limited travel for recreational purposes would produce little or no encouragement for the public to develop a positive attitude toward such desired alternative to private auto travel as car pools and mass transit.

There has been House approval for a bill which would require that local government uniform traffic code provisions on drunk driving while impaired be identical to the same provisions in the Michigan Vehicle Code.

A companion bill also approved by the House would eliminate the requirement that the clerk of a municipality which has a uniform traffic code make copies of it available for free distribution to the public. Instead, the bill would require only that a copy of the code be available for public inspection. This would reduce an expense for local governments.

Both bills are under Senate consideration.

Editor's Log

A stranger makes The News

By DENNIS FASSETT
Managing Editor

He says his name is Giles . . . Bill Giles and only a few months ago he was a stranger in town.

I would like to comment on that stranger and what he has accomplished in this town in only a few brief months.

Giles is the editor of The Detroit News.

From the beginning, when Giles introduced himself to us on the editorial page last summer, until today, I remain impressed with the guy who isn't afraid to try something new.

Resisting, I'm sure, the 'who cares syndrome,' Giles followed up on his introduction with a well done weekly biography of the people who make the important and, not so important, decisions at Detroit's largest evening paper. By doing so he has brought life to the pages of his paper. In place of a sterile by-line, we now read people not just names.

A tough act to follow!

Not for Giles apparently.

Shortly after, he radically changed the paper's type styles, revamped the editorial pages and for a brief period had both large and small papers wondering if he had spent too much time in the sun.

Well, as the rest of us are beginning to suspect, maybe we have not been in the sun long enough. Shortly on the heels of radical make-up changes, Giles made a decision which I'm sure, many felt was going too far, even for the editor of the News. He would write a column.

For those unfamiliar with the hazards of writing a column, suffice it to say, many tried and many are still trying. And for a man with as many daily responsibilities as Giles, the specter of producing a quality column on a regular basis bordered on the impossible.

For a very select few, producing a column creates only a mild interruption in a day of worthwhile activity, but for most of the rest of us, it is a course fraught with peril.

Since each column represents, at least theoretically, the very best effort we are able to muster, failure is equivalent to a roar of laughter while we stand naked in front of the world.

But while Giles may have disrobed, there is no laughter. And it is his column that has prompted this effort.

While his columns have pretty much covered the available turf, for those of us in the weekly newspaper business, his piece on nasty letters from nasty attorneys, will remain a classic.

Not that we all haven't received our share (some of us receive more than our share) but because Giles chose to let the world see one of the favorite methods arrogant 'big shooters' may employ to try to intimidate the news media.

Perhaps, readers of that piece by Giles, will gain just a little better insight into some of the inherent risks associated with a profession which deals with reporting on local events. Often, events some would prefer not having reported.

And it is Giles' knack of providing that inside view of this business which has so quickly separated him from the rest.

Over a picture, which his friends claim is an advertisement for under-arm deodorant, his column has brought one more dimension to this business he represents so well.

Whether he is quietly counseling one of his young reporters over a cup of coffee at the U of M Student Union, or sitting in the editor's office of a weekly newspaper ferreting out fact from fiction, Giles has made the effort to put people back into the pages of his newspaper. I think he is succeeding.

According to Giles, a newspaper's highest calling is to serve the people. He is apparently ready to live that conviction.

But regardless of his apparent sell-out to the deodorant business, a good paper is better because Giles used-to-be a stranger in town.

Mother resents surprise bad news

EDITOR:

I've just returned from a general membership meeting of the Romulus North Little League.

My nine year old daughter has been anxious for this night since a card arrived last week stating uniforms would be passed out tonight.

She sat thrilled, through the distribution of seven full teams of kids getting colorful shirts and caps. Being still was hard. Then her name was called for team eight.

But Janice Coulson, minor player agent, tells all these last children "I'm sorry, I don't have a manager for this team. Don't come up for a uniform, I don't have them. If I don't get a manager by May 15th these children won't be allowed to play." I more than understand how hard it is to get managers.

But tell me why an adult board of directors would let an entire team of children be so badly hurt by their attitude, conduct and method of operation?

It is my opinion that Officer Fred Yono exemplifies an efficient yet

A simple call or card would have been a better way to let these kids down.

I never could stand to see a child kicked, and my girl looked as if they had done just that.

Reader praises Van Buren police officer

EDITOR:

I am writing this letter as a compliment to the courteous conduct of a Van Buren police officer.

On April 18th, I was driving on the I-94 service drive near Rawsonville Road and was stopped by Officer Fred Yono of the Van Buren Police Department.

Although we were in disagreement on a few issues, I was impressed by the professional conduct, sincerity and understanding attitude of Officer Yono. He did not abuse his authority nor did he assume a dictatorial position.

I have lived in the Belleville area for eleven years. I am a high school teacher in Lincoln Park and a driver education instructor. I have numerous contacts with police officers and am in a position to make an impartial evaluation of their attitude, conduct and method of operation.

It is my opinion that Officer Fred Yono exemplifies an efficient yet sincere and understanding representative of the Law Enforcement Profession.

He is a credit to the community and deserves recognition for his attitude, courteous and professional performance.

Idle hands, mother's helper

By JOYCE HAGELTHORN

My friend Mary Lee was complaining the other day. She said she wished kids would do something around the house and I told her she should be grateful they don't. The other women at the table verbally assaulted me. But I held firm to my statement, although I know that none of them have kids like mine, so it is probably asking too much for them to understand why I made such a vehement statement. Just let me explain.

A couple of weeks ago my husband took a look at me and said I looked tired, and I said I was, because whenever he thinks I look tired I know it is because he wants to go somewhere. So I always agree, for I love to go places.

"Let's go up north," he said, sure enough, and I, sure enough, agreed.

A couple of days later found us on the open road. We walked along the lake shore, poking at melting ice; we ate at a little out of the way restaurants, and we slept in the room overlooking the lake, even though the heat hadn't been turned on.

It was beautiful!

When we drove into the driveway Sunday evening the windows were actually bulging from the beat of the stereo, and nary a window had a curtain.

"Oh my gosh," I shrieked, "that kid has been fixing things again."

I begged to turn around and go back up north, but my husband told me I had to be brave, so I clutched his belt and dragged in behind him. Our unemployed, degree'd kid was nodding his head to the beat of the stereo, a big fat grin plastered on his face. The walls were a different color from what they had been on Friday, and they were bare.

"Where are my bookshelves?" I cried. "I took them down. Books are dust-catchers," he said.

"I WANT my books," I shrieked.

"Sorry Grandma," he answered, keeping time to his music.

"Where are my pictures?" I shouted again.

"Gone," he answered.

"GONE," I shouted.

"No one clutters beautifully painted walls with the junk you had up there."

"I LIKE my pictures," I cried.

"Good, grandma. I piled them with your books in the den."

I went into my den.

"Oh my God," I knelt and began to pray. I had to do that because I had this urge to kill, and I needed to repent fast, for piled all over the room, on the floor, sofa, chairs, and on my typewriter were books and pictures.

My husband lifted me to my feet. "Look at the good part," he whispered. "The walls are beautiful, the woodwork is startling white... and I won't have to do it myself."

He dragged me to the kitchen where my eyes were again assaulted, for stacked on the kitchen table were great quantities of returnable bottles, along with jackets, and boots, and anything else the kid had had in his hand in the last three days.

And there was Uncle gunnar sitting in the middle of it eating a peanut butter sandwich.

"Heh, heh, I guess you were surprised," he grinned.

"Yeh, Grandma, as soon as you get this cleaned up it won't look bad," my kid said and ducked just in time to keep from getting clobbered with his boot I found on the table.

Parental Pitfalls

Greetings, folks...It's me!

By SHERRY WAINES

Greetings Community! It's me, your neighbor Sherry Waines. In the few years that I have lived here, I have been fortunate enough to meet quite a few of you living in this area. I treasure the friendships that I share with some of you.

There are alot more of you I recognize, but can't remember your names (I can't even remember my own sister's names at times).

You are always there, when I am running around doing errands, or when I go to a local function of some sort or other. You always have a smile on your face, and a friendly Hello.

Most of you I have never met, but I have been observing you. Oh Boy have I been observing you.

Like you Mr. and Mrs. Somebody on Wick Road. Every summer as I speed past your house I look to see if you are out there in your garden tending your flowers and vegetables as I know you have in the past. For God only knows how long you labor with such love, patience and pride. If you are not there I miss you.

Little Boy with the dirty face and hands, I saw you one day walking home from the store with a loaf of bread in one hand and a brown paper bag in the other. You were picking up litter and stuffing it in your bag. I didn't tell you how proud I was of you, thinking that my acknowledgment of your good deed would prove to be to embarrassing to a young man of 10 or maybe 12. Now I wish I had.

You people in Belleville who put on the fire works every 4th of July, I don't know who you are or what you look like, but I like you.

Do you know what joy you bring to so many people?

There is one question that I do have to ask you though. Have the fire works really gotten smaller or have I just grown so much that it seems so? As a child it seemed as though the whole sky was filled with color and brilliance for hours on end. Each year that we go to watch them, I wonder if my daughter is seeing the same vision through her eyes that I remember seeing through mine as a child. The same wonderment, excitement and mystery are there for her.

For that I thank you.

There are so many of you out there that I want to acknowledge. And to say: you are what makes living in this community great. But, its you, the people who have made this community what it is today, that I am most grateful to.

You firemen, you mothers who help our kids at school, all you great cooks who help with the church dinners, you people who help our poor and sick, and all the rest of you, too numerous to mention, you know who you are. The frustrations and headaches you get from such work must outweigh the thanks that you receive but for some reason you keep going. I have no idea why, but I sure am glad you do.

Being a parent in a community that seems to have an over abundance of children, the idea struck me that we should share our problems with child raising and our solutions to these problems PARENT TO PARENT.

Although I have been a parent for the last eight years (which to me means I have earned by PHD in parenting), there is one thing that I have definitely learned. Parenting is not instinctive like I thought it was.

Before my daughter was born her father and I would have long talks on what great parents we were going to be, how wonderful it was going to be.

Then the day came for us to bring her home from the hospital. I remember laying her in her bed and just sitting there looking at her saying to myself, "Oh my God, now what do I do?"

"That's a mind and body that I'm fooling around with." That's the day that all my securities about being the best parent in the world flew out the window and haven't been back since.

Everytime I feel good about what I'm doing something happens, maybe just a scraped elbow or a bad conduct mark in school for talking (which she inherited from her mother). I can hear a voice saying "And you thought you knew what you were doing."

After reading a library full of books cover to cover on parenting, I discovered the best way to find out about parenting is to discuss the problems and solutions with other parents, aunts, uncles, and grandparents, babysitters, teachers, anyone who has contact with children.

You don't have to accept their advice, but it sure is nice to know that there are others who feel the same way you do. Did the word frustration come from parenting?

We can all use some help at one time or another and there are a lot of you out there with some really terrific ideas. So, let's get together and share our ideas PARENT TO PARENT. Maybe this column will be able to help us to get through our problem times with a little less pain and a lot more JOY.

H.F. Campbell survives Depression, war to grow

recalls that he made more than $20,000 that first year, and the country was now in the grips of the Great Depression.

The company received its initial start by setting Detroit back. The city had just embarked on a major street-widening program and many of the buildings along Livernois, Woodward and Gratiot avenues had to be moved back on their lots to accommodate the enlargement of these major traffic arteries.

Fred Campbell recalls these early days when the company had as many as 30 jobs in progress at a time on these three streets, constructing new foundations, raising the buildings of their existing footings, moving them to their new sites and then installing the electrical and plumbing services before moving on to another project.

As the depression deepened, funds became more difficult to obtain and the company often was being paid in script instead of cash. This led Campbell into an active bartering arrangement as he traded script for lumber, concrete block and other building supplies to keep construction projects supplied and his workmen employed and busy.

American oil companies were expanding at this time trying to keep pace with the expanding automobile population. Since these firms had the financial reserves to pay cash for their projects, they were lucrative clients. The H.F. Campbell Company began to build gasoline stations throughout the area to improve the cash flow for the fledgling firm.

Competition for these commercial building contracts in the early 1930s was so severe that cost estimation became a real art.

As Campbell recounts: "You had to estimate a job so close that unused materials after you were finished with a project could be carted off in a single wheelbarrow. A $10 difference in your bid could determine if you were awarded the contract for construction or not."

Campbell learned to estimate well, and his superior production record insured a steady stream of assignments that allowed the company to expand and grow even at the lowest points of the Great Depression.

Realizing that just being good wasn't enough, Campbell continued to look for better ways of improving his techniques and bettering his building materials to enhance his competitive position. During this period, Campbell developed and patented his first proprietary item — a two-inch brick veneer which reduced costs and sped construction over the standard building methods of the period.

This invention was the beginning of a heavy research effort which eventually would be spun off into the Campbell Research Company, a wholly-owned subsidiary which developed many new materials and techniques for the construction trade.

It also was during the depression that Campbell realized that his production would cease if his customers could not obtain favorable financing for new construction and renovations. He worked out some innovative arrangements with local financial institutions to help his customers obtain needed financing, complete their projects, and also provide the lenders with higher quality collateral than they had before he began his work.

His inventive nature and innovations produced more business than the company could handle from its location in the Ternes Lumber Yard, so he built a new company office on Goldner Avenue where he had more space to store the increased number of heavy equipment pieces the firm had acquired.

It was about this time that the H. F. Campbell Company began specializing in the design and construction of commercial and industrial buildings for Detroit's leading companies and gradually withdrew from the housemoving and smaller projects that had given it a start.

The first major project that Campbell undertook was a 433,800-square foot parts depot for the Lincoln-Mercury Division of the Ford Motor Company on Telegraph Road.

Campbell also recalls the construction of an entire tractor assembly plant in only 119 days for Ferguson Tractor in Southfield. He remarked: "My contract with Ferguson required that the plant be ready in 125 days and I was facing a $500-a-day penalty, if I was late. That kind of incentive keeps you on your toes, and you learn to build it right the first time."

Once his reputation for quality construction was established with the automotive companies and their suppliers, the H. F. Campbell Company began supervising construction projects for these firms on a national and international basis. Today, the firm is licensed to operate in 26 states.

With the advent of World War II and the rationing of structural steel, Campbell's research efforts again came to the forefront as he developed a laminated wood plate girder — the Timbeam — as a substitute for steel framing in construction projects. This innovation kept his business prospering through another trying period and his crews active when other contractors were being stymied by supply shortages.

After the war another building boom occurred and once again the company outgrew its location and had to relocate to larger quarters. This time the firm moved to 9301 Michigan Avenue on Detroit's southwest side, where it remains today.

The Michigan Avenue complex is the nerve center for a one-stop building organization that can provide total services to its customers.

Campbell's philosophy of constructing a better building, faster, and for less money is directly attributable for the phenomenal growth of this far-flung firm. As it enters its sixth decade under Fred Campbell's leadership, the H. F. Campbell Company shows no signs of slowing down. Like its founder, the company still is striving to find a better, more effective, and more economical way to service its diversified clientele.

Ford's proposal seeks to solve energy problems

New legislation has been introduced by Michigan Congressman William D. Ford (D-15th District) in an effort to resolve the nation's continuing energy problems.

Congressman Ford is co-sponsoring a bill to mandate the Department of Energy to act as the sole purchasing agent for all petroleum and petroleum products imported into the United States.

The legislation is entitled The Oil Import Purchasing Authority Act of 1979.

"We have been accepting higher and higher oil prices set by the petroleum producing nations and the international oil companies," Congressman Ford said. "It is time we start to fight back."

Legislation giving the President authority to draft such an oil-import plan was approved by Congress four years ago, but was left to the President's discretion. The new legislation would make the plan mandatory.

"Our intention is to bring competition into the oil import business. By seeking competitive bids from oil-selling nations, we may be able to drive a wedge into the OPEC cartel, and bring about lower petroleum prices," Congressman Ford said.

Under the proposed plan, the Energy Department would seek sealed bids from any oil-producing nation seeking access to the U.S. market.

"It is basic American free enterprise in action," Congressman Ford said, "encouraging marketplace competition to bring about lower prices."

Travel TALK FROM ADVENTURE TRAVEL SERVICE Gary Sampson CRUISE COSTS

How much does an ocean cruise cost? The determining factors are the ship you select, the size and location of your cabin, the time of year, and the itinerary of your particular cruise. Try this on for size—you can take some three-day cruises between Florida and the Bahamas for a minimum of $95 per person or cruise around the world on the Queen Elizabeth II for more than $20,000. Realistically, you can figure on a range between $30 and $100 per person per day with the average around $50 or $60. If the cost of the ticket seems high, remember what all it covers:

Your basic fare covers your room, all meals, shipboard entertainment, transportation to your port of call and unlimited use of all recreation facilities. The only things not covered which is an easier way to look at it—are liquor (cheap on ships because no taxes are imposed), gifts or incidentals you might buy on board, and naturally, whatever you spend in ports of call. Your ticket is your hotel, transportation, restaurant and relaxation enroute—all in one.

"Just remember, our service doesn't cost a thing." For all your travel needs—airline tickets, sea cruises, hotel reservations, car rentals or completely planned business or vacation trips, please phone or drop in at.

Tolson woos state 2-mile record

Ypsilanti captures Wayne Relays championship

Doug Tolson lost to Adrian's Jim Miller at the Mansfield, Ohio Relays earlier in the year.

On Saturday, the 17-year-old Wayne junior and Miller met again and staged a thrilling duel in the 2-mile at the Wayne Memorial Invitational.

Tolson turned in a blistering 9:14.15 to beat his arch-rival by at least seven-hundredths of a second and the winning time was the best performance in that event by a Michigan prep this year.

"Tolson's performance was just one of many superb performances by area athletes," pointed out Wayne Coach Ernie Righetti. "The 100-yard dash, the shuttle hurdle relay also saw new marks set."

Ypsilanti, which compiled 70 points, dethroned defending champ, Trenton, as the invitational champ. Dearborn finished second in the field of 15 teams, while there was a 3-way tie for third place with Romulus, Dearborn Heights Robichaud and Dearborn Fordson squeezed into that position.

The host, Wayne, finished sixth (42 points) and neighboring Westland John Glenn finished ninth (30). Belleville was 11th (19).

The Tolson-Miller showdown was a classic.

Miller, a senior, set the pace for the first half mile, but yielded to Tolson at that point. The Wayne junior led the rest of the way with Miller close on his heels.

With a half-mile to go, Tolson took a five-yard lead and attempted to pull away from the runner from Adrian who refused to quit. At the finish line, Tolson definitely had a clear-cut victory.

Tolson is zeroing in on the Class A state record, (9:00.4) and if he continues at the same pace he'll probably become the first Michigan prep 2-miler to break the nine-minute barrier.

The national record stands at 8:45.0 and a year from now Tolson could make an assault on that record.

Ypsilanti's senior sprinter, David

Jones, proved he'll be the one to watch at the Class A state finals when it comes to the 100-yard dash. He was clocked in 9.79, beating Class B state champ, Mark Woodson, of Dearborn Heights Robichaud fame, to the wire. Woodson's second place time was 9.80.

Romulus dominated the high hurdles thanks to the 1-2 performances of Richard Lewis and Les Beregsasy. Lewis led his teammate across the finish line as he posted the winning time of 15:02. Coach Al Wilkerson's Eagles came back and won the shuttle hurdle relay with a line-up of Beregsasy, David Earle, Larry Young and Lewis who churned out a 1:01.85.

Robichaud took two gold medals back to Dearborn Heights. Coach Leit Jones had the best discus trio in Robert Johnson, Calvin Townsend and Ralph Sims whose combined efforts totaled 371'2". The Bulldogs' shot put team, made up of Robert Johnson, Townsend and Clarence Massey placed first on the strength of 146'4".

Tolson and Miller were matched again in the medley relay and the officials had to declare a "dead heat," splitting first place between the Wayne and Adrian entries.

Robichaud had taken the lead after the half-milers had handed off their batons, but Tolson and Miller erased the deficit quickly and found themselves exchanging stride-for-stride right to the wire. Officials clocked the two teams in identical 7:42.59, another meet record.

"It was probably the best of five meets," commented Bill Hawley, Wayne High athletic director. "Some of the times these kids turned in are among the top times in the state thus far this season."

The Sports Meridian

Profitable sabotage

By TOM MOORADIAN
ANP Sports Editor

"Sabotage" is a powerful word that conjures images of agents placing dynamite and bombs at strategic military installations, bridges, railroads and the Hazel Park Raceway.

Hazel Park Raceway? That's right - someone or a few somebodies Friday night or early Saturday morning cut the wire to the tote board thereby making that all-important statistical life-line lifeless for last Saturday's big betting day.

On that day Hazel Park officials said they would be handing out $2 win tickets on Spectacular Bid for the 105th running of the Kentucky Derby. The tickets, a P.R. promotion, would go to the first 3,000 paid patrons.

Of course, because of the sabotage there wasn't any racing or betting at Hazel Park on Saturday. That means someone got stuck (and how I wish I could have been that someone) with 3,000 ducats.

The Hazel Park track officials explained that they had sent a courier to purchase the tickets on Friday - the day before the Derby - so that they could be handed out on Saturday.

Then the sabotage...

The rest is history.

Spectacular Bid breezed to an easy victory and paid his supporters $3.20 on the win-side, which means the Hazel Park track officials now have tickets that are worth $9,600. Take-away the initial investment to buy the 3,000 tickets ($6,000), the track made a hefty $3,600.

Not bad for a day's rest, huh.

Wish I could find someone to sabotage me like that.

Area high school track & field coaches also confirmed last week that the Western Wayne Relays will officially be renamed posthumously to honor Harry Hidenfelter, a man who devoted his life to high school athletics.

"We will rename the relays the Hidenfelter Memorial Invitational to honor Hidenfelter, a person who we all respected," announced Don Domke, athletic director at Westland John Glenn.

"Harry was a close personal friend of mine and all of us who knew him respected what he did for high school athletics," said Domke.

Harry's widow, Mrs. Donna Hidenfelter, attended last week's track competitions and handed out trophies to the winning relay teams.

Hidenfelter was also posthumously named to the 1979 Michigan Hall of Fame. A picture plaque will be placed in the Hall of Fame room on the campus of Michigan State University.

Belleville will also be represented in the prestigious "Hall" by Vitold Kaminskis, the Tigers' ex-baseball skipper who devoted more than a quarter of a century to coaching high school baseball clubs.

According to the Hall of Fame selection committee, to be eligible for the coveted honor, a candidate must have served a minimum of 25 years in coaching and must have been a resident of this state for at least 10 years.

Few men have stood that test of time.

And only a few readers in this area may have heard about the heroics of ex-Romulus High's cage wonder, Jane Shaffer.

When the voters in that school district torpedoed a millage levy two years ago, Miss Shaffer decided to transfer to Allen Park Cabrini High School where she led Coach Shelly Olive's cagers to a 23-3 record and a First Division basketball championship and the Class C state championship.

Miss Shaffer, a lanky 6-footer, managed to grab 17 rebounds per game and score an average of 19 points per while shooting a torrid 60 percent from the floor. Her statistics fell on the eyes of a national panel who recently named Miss Shaffer to All-American honors.

That title, obviously, brought a lot of college scouts to the Shaffer dwelling in Romulus, and she quickly ended all speculation to where she'll continue to play when she signed a national letter of intent to enroll at the University of Detroit.

Michalowski saves Zebras

Romulus, Wayne share Hidenfelter Relays' title

Romulus and Wayne Memorial high schools will share the 1979 Western Wayne Relays, renamed the Harry Hidenfelter Memorial Relays in honor of the former Belleville High athletic director.

The two teams wound up in a tie for first place thanks to an excellent performance by Wayne Memorial's Mark Michalowski whose 51.2 split in the mile relay earned for the Zebras a third place and three crucial points that lifted them to a co-championship.

It was the first time in 20 years that Romulus had won a major track title; Wayne's last WW crown was in 1970 when the Zebras' present coach, Ernie Righetti, was a member of the Wayne team.

"You know this was supposed to be a rebuilding year for us," pointed out Romulus head coach Al Wilkerson, "however, our seniors are doing a superb job in providing the attitude and leadership to win. One of the things I liked the most was to watch Romulus and Wayne take that victory lap together."

Coach Righetti said he was "surprised at our victory."

"But Michalowski ran an excellent race and his 51.2 split provided us with a needed third place finish which enabled us to tie them (Romulus)."

Righetti said. "We're really happy to win."

Wayne's sensational junior, Doug Tolson, added the Open 2-mile record to his many feats. Tolson wasn't challenged as he turned in a 9:24.25 in polishing off the gold medal. He also anchored the Zebras' winning two-mile relay, teaming with Michalowski, Andy Stopchinski, and Ray Carswell for an 8:18.7 finish.

Romulus picked up four first places, two of them in record-shattering times. The Eagles' low hurdles shuttle relay team, made up of Les Beregsasy, David Earle, Donald Grandison and Richard Lewis turned in a 57.2, easily beating Wayne's entry over the finish line.

In the high hurdles shuttle, Romulus put together a team made up of Beregsasy, Earle, Larry Young, and Lewis and no one could touch them as the closest challenger, Livonia Franklin, trailed by as much as five-seconds. The Eagles' 62.1 was placed in the record books.

Romulus took the 440-yard relay with Grandison, Michael Scott, Lewis and Young in 44.5, then picked up the long jump competition on the performances of Donald Grandison, David Earle, and Beregsasy whose combined efforts equaled 60 feet, 3 inches.

Where's the leader?

Bunched together are two-milers chasing an out-of-the-picture Doug Tolson who quickly moved to the front of the pack and disappeared in this race to win the gold medal at the Harry Hidenfelter Relays hosted by Westland John Glenn last Tuesday. The relays were renamed for the former Belleville High athletic director who was instrumental in organizing them 20 years ago as the Western Wayne Relays.

Belleville, Glenn split doubleheader

Paul Arnett's run-scoring single in the bottom of the seventh broke up a pitcher's duel between Westland John Glenn's Mark Cesarz and Belleville's Tom Montgomery to give Belleville a narrow 2-1 victory over their out-of-the conference visitors Saturday afternoon.

Glenn came back behind the six-hit pitching of righthander Rick Knurek to win the second game of a doubleheader, 6-3.

Cesarz was in command until the last of the seventh when DH Mike Nowak singled and moved to second on a single by Dave Stamper. Glenn coach Norm Hoenes decided upon a pitching change at this point and brought in ace, Ralph McKenzie, who tried to pick-off Nowak at second and threw the ball into centerfield.

McKenzie then lost Wayne Morris on a walk, loading the bases. Chris O'Keefe's sacrifice drove in the tying run, bringing up Arnett who proceeded to ram a fastball into left center to score the winning run.

The Westlanders got on the board in the fourth inning when Pat Kaltenbach singled, was sacrificed to second by Tony Balimonti and scored on Rick Robinson's base hit.

Cesarz, in six innings of work, fanned six and walked one. He also gave up five hits and was charged with the loss. Montgomery collected his first win of the season, a four-hitter. He also notched four strikeouts and walked an equal number.

In the second game, Knurek, who stands 5'5", must have looked like a giant to the Tigers. The hard-throwing senior scattered six hits, struck out three and walked four in winning his third game in as many starts this season.

Glenn got three runs for their diminutive hurler in the second inning as Rob Suida was safe on an error, advanced to second when Greg Denomie's grounder was booted and scored on a miscue throw. Jeff Cesarz tripled in Suida and he scored when Daran Armstrong sliced a single.

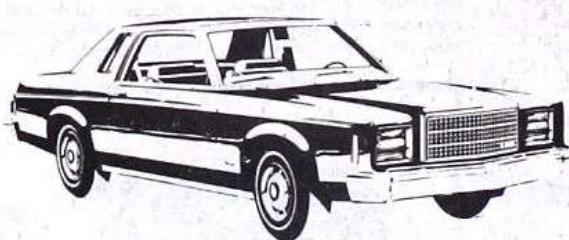

After Belleville cut the lead to 3-2 with single runs in the second and third innings, the Westlanders put two more runs on the board in the fourth as Knurek and Armstrong each belted singles and scored on Jim Remington's base hit.

Suida doubled in the fifth and was chased home on John Kociala's base hit to account for the final Rocket run.

Belleville got a third inning home run from Arnett and Bob Watts connected for a roundtripper in the

Tri-River leaders cashing in on porous Spartan defense

Everyone wants to play Cherry Hill these days. And for a very good reason.

It seems that Coach Ken Mientkiewicz' Spartans are playing "give-away" and Tri-River Conference baseball teams are hurriedly standing in line for their unseasonal gift.

"We lost three of four games — no, let me take that back," said Mientkiewicz. "We gave away three of four games last week because of our sloppy defense, and now it seems everybody wants to play us because we've been giving games away."

Cherry Hill committed four errors in losing a 1-0 thriller to Taylor Kennedy, the defending Tri-River Conference champs. They also dropped a 6-4 decision to undefeated Melvindale, despite outhitting the Cardinals 6-4, and lost a 7-6 squeaker to Garden City West thanks to a porous defense that let four balls go through.

The only bright spot for Cherry Hill last week was a 6-3 triumph over Dearborn Heights Riverside. That

"We've been getting the hitting and the pitching," Coach Mientkiewicz pointed out. "It's the defense that is killing us."

One unearned run in the fourth led to the Spartans' demise against Kennedy which tagged losing pitcher Jerome Potvin for three hits. Potvin's chances to beat the champs evaporated when, with one away, he served up an infield hit to Bob Miller, but struck out Tim Hoyer who reached first when the Spartan catcher missed the ball. A throwing error led to the winning run.

Potvin fanned five and walked three in taking the loss.

Melvindale rallied for three runs in the bottom of the sixth to stop the Spartans and pitcher Brian Hewitt who gave up eight hits, struck out four and walked one. Winner Doug Allard delivered an over-the-left field fence homer to Brian Hewitt who finished the day with three hits. Rick Searcy and Dave O'Koney each had two hits and Bill Walters went two for three.

O'Koney picked up the victory on a 7-hitter against Riverside. He was backed by a nine-hit assault including a double and triple by Ted Salvadori and Bill James' two hits, one a double. The Spartan hurler aided his own cause with a pair of singles and by scoring twice.

After collecting three runs in the top of the sixth to tie West at 6-all, the Spartans lost a 7-6 game to Coach Bob Dropp's Tigers in that inning when Searcy walked Rago, then proceeded to give up singles to Boston and Jaskolski.

Cherry Hill grabbed a 2-0 first inning lead as Hewitt singled off of Doug Boston, then Salvadori also sliced a base hit and with runners on first and second Searcy doubled, scoring one run. O'Koney's punt brought home the second run.

The Spartans made it a 3-0 game in the second as Brian Hewitt's single chased home Potvin who had also singled, moved to second on Walter's single and to third on Mike Johnson's punt.

However, West tied it up in the bottom of the second and gained a 6-3 advantage in the fourth before the Spartans put three runs on the board in the sixth on a single by O'Koney, Potvin's base hit and a walk to Walters, loading the bases.

Johnson then latched on to a two-run single, and an infield error scored the third run.

Mientkiewicz' troops encounter three more league foes this week, starting on Monday with Dearborn Heights Crestwood, Southgate on Wednesday and Schafer on Friday.

"We've had our share of bad luck," Mientkiewicz said, "let's hope its our oppositions turn this week."

Easy does it

Hovering perilously over the bar is Livonia Churchill's Ralph Jarnot who manages to clear the height at 5 feet, 11 inches and help the Chargers win the gold in the high jump at the annual Harry Hidenfelter's Relays at Westland John Glenn.

Franklin runs like a champ

Claiming 13 out of a possible 16 first places, Livonia Franklin launched its defense of the Northwest Suburban Conference track title with a lopsided 92-40 victory over Garden City East.

Rained or iced out against two other league rivals, it was Franklin's first league meet of the campaign and hiked Coach Bob Holmes' over-all record to 2-0 on the year.

"It's incredible but here it is nearly the middle of May and we have had just one league meet," Holmes noted. The Patriots were scheduled to make up their meet with Redford Union on Tuesday, then travel to Redford Township to take on Thurston on Thursday.

Don Boka, Andy Dankovic and Mike Mussallam each accounted for two first places for Franklin against the rebuilding Panthers. Boka tossed the discus 131 feet, 11 inches and turned in a 45 foot heave in the shot put to win his second event.

Dankovic dominated the high hurdles, leading two of his teammates across the finish line. He was clocked in 13.8 and later returned for the low hurdles and won in 41.5.

Area track, field listing

Here are this week's top track and field performances as compiled by Al Wilkerson, Romulus High head track and field coach. Coach Wilkerson may be reached at the high school by telephoning 941-2170 or after 6 p.m. at his home, 292-2621.

Romulus, Wayne thinclads share Hidenfelter title

Dearborn Heights Robichaud, one of the finer Class B teams in the state, won the 880-yard relay as Coach Leit Jones singled out Camille Swasey, Darnell Gray, Bruce Swasey and Mark Woodson for the event. The foursome was clocked in 1:32.3. The Dearborn Heights' thinclads also won the mile relay with Arthur Chamber, Bruce Swasey, Terry Ross and Woodson who were clocked in 3:28.9.

Westland John Glenn, host for the meet, picked up its only gold with Tom Andrews, Paul Stephens, Tim Unold and Cory Gielinski churning out an 18:52.7 in winning the 4-mile relay.

"It was an excellent meet and I'm really proud that the relays will bear the name of a man — Harry Hidenfelter — who has done so much for young athletes and students in this area," said Barry Basel, Westland John Glenn head track & field coach. "The competition was great — at one span there were at least five teams which were tied for first place."

This vaulter isn't camera shy, but he has his eyes on the bar as he descends from a height of 11 feet. Don't know who the unidentified pole vaulter is - but it was Livonia

Churchill's threesome who eventually captured top honors in the event at the annual Harry Hidenfelter Relays, staged at John Glenn.

Perfect week

Romulus ups its baseball record to 5-4

A 3-run last of the seventh rally enabled Romulus to put down a pesky Dearborn Heights Annapolis baseball team 7-6 and lift the Eagles over the .500 mark this season.

The victory gave Coach Dennis Stoh's club a 5-4 record to work on as the week began.

"It wasn't the best game we have played," Stoh commented, "but the kids didn't quit, and it proved to be the most exciting game this season for us.

"And, obviously, we are thankful to win," Stoh added.

Annapolis grabbed a 6-4 lead in the top of the seventh off of Romulus starter Tom Schick, but the Eagles came to bat in their seventh and winning pitcher Mike Rakotz started the fireworks with a leadoff single. Mike Johnson then followed with his second hit of the day, a single, and Steve Venier walked, loading the bases.

Annapolis changed pitchers and reliever Jim Fackiewicz gave up a "Texas-leaguer" to Russ Ayers, scoring one run. That brought up Romulus' leading hitter, John Bozelak who walked, forcing in the tying run.

Stoh then inserted pinch-hitter

Jim Sullivan who put down a suicide bunt which scored the decisive run. "We were lucky," added Stoh.

"When you commit five errors you usually don't walk away a winner."

Annapolis collected six of its eight hits off of starter Tom Schick who worked 5 and one-third innings, gave up four runs, struck out three and walked two.

Bozelak, hitting at a .467 clip, singled in a pair of runs in the first inning when each team put two runs on the scoreboard. Johnson had a triple and single, while Ayers chipped in a pair of hits and three RBIs to up his batting average to .400.

Earlier in the week Romulus held off Woodhaven 8-5 as the Flat Rock club came up with two runs in the last inning but fell short. A 5-run Romulus third inning was the difference. In that pivotal frame, Doug Daniels walked, moved to second when Schick was safe on an error and scored on Rich Hoth's single. Ayers then doubled in two runs and Bozelak drilled a two-run homer off of loser Scotty Hill.

The Eagles made it a 8-1 game in the top of the fifth as the first three batters — Steve Venier, Ayers and Bozelak all reached base on errors and Tony Cholette chased in one run with a single and Tim Brown's base hit produced the final Romulus run.

Bozelak picked up two RBIs with two hits and Cholette also accounted for two runs batted in.

Romulus had a date with Ann Arbor Huron on Monday, weather permitting, while they will meet Garden City East on Thursday and Willow Run on Friday. East and Willow Run are home games.

Wayne netters to host Great Lakes championship

A 7-0 shutout at the hands of defending champ Monroe has convinced Wayne Memorial tennis coach Jack Armstrong that the Trojans "definitely are the class of the league again this year."

"Though Wyandotte also beat us 7-0," Coach Armstrong remarked, "at this point I would have to say that Monroe has the team to keep your eyes on."

Armstrong and his Zebras will host the 1979 version of the Great Lakes 8 Conference championships beginning at 9 a.m. on Saturday. Matches will be held on Wayne Memorial as well as neighboring Westland John Glenn tennis courts.

Wayne carried a 5-2 conference record into this week's action, after losing a pair of 7-0 decisions to Wyandotte and Monroe. The Zebras recovered from their losses to edge Lincoln Park 4-3 and beat Riverview 5-2 late in the week.

"Lincoln Park is an excellent team," said Armstrong. "Most of our matches went three sets with them. It's always a pleasure to beat them because we have developed a healthy rivalry between our two teams."

Franklin '9' captures Cosens' crown

Livonia Franklin left little room for speculation about who has the best high school baseball team in the city.

Coach Gerry Cullin's Patriots throttled Churchill 10-2, and buried Stevenson in the championship round 13-4 to win the 1979 Walt Cosens' Memorial Baseball Title.

"I was very pleased at the over-all team effort of our players," said the rookie Franklin head coach. "And it was definitely a team effort that helped us bring the championship trophy back to Franklin."

Cosens was a former Franklin High athletic director-coach who succumbed to a fatal heart attack several years ago.

"I knew and respected Walt Cosens," said Coach Cullin. "And I know he would have been pleased at this team's outstanding performance not only on the field, but with the sportsmanship each and every player displayed."

Cullin drafted lefthander Jeff Aguzzi in the opening game against Churchill and the 17-year-old senior hurler handcuffed the Chargers on a no-hitter. Churchill scored two unearned runs in the fifth, but the outcome of the game had already been decided as the Patriots erupted for five runs in the third after scoring two in the second.

Aguzzi struck out three and walked none in recording the area's first no-hitter this season.

Jeff Sergison led Franklin's hitting assault on losing pitcher Jeff Connelly. He cashed in three hits (in four appearances) for four runs batted in. Herb McManaway belted a triple and double and scored twice in three trips to the plate.

Craig Joes got the job done against Stevenson as he limited the Spartans to four hits, struck out six and walked four. Stevenson's four runs were unearned.

Franklin fell behind after scoring one run in the first, but the patriots erased a 3-1 deficit with a 6-run bottom of the third surge, then added two in the fourth and picked up four runs in the sixth.

Chris Baker accounted for four RBIs for his three hits, including a double, while McManaway remained hot at the plate as he hammered in four runs with a couple of triples and a single.

Franklin also fanned Thurston 13-2 behind southpaw Jeff Sergison's three-hitter to stay undefeated and keep pace with North Farmington in the Northwest Suburban Conference.

Sergison received ample hitting support from John Mazurek who went two for three and had two RBIs. Baker again came through at the plate, this time collecting a perfect three for three and McManaway drilled a bases-loaded triple in the fifth inning.

Jim Wilson, who's batting .500, had three runs batted in for his two singles.

Franklin scored a sixth inning run and Ken Webster twirled a three-hitter as the Patriots won a 1-0 thriller over East.

The Livonians got the decisive run on a walk to Baker, a stolen base and McManaway's single.

fourth. Mike Stoelton's single, a walk to Lloyd Dubisky, and Watts' single paved the way for the Tigers' fourth inning tally.

Glenn rallied for two runs in the last of the seventh but fell short as the Westlanders were edged 6-5 by Garden City East in a Northwest Suburban Conference ball game earlier in the week.

Wayne explodes—

wins 2 big ones

Coach Jim Chronowski has 29 reasons to smile this week.

The Wayne baseball mentor, who has had his problems getting his club to smack the ball, watched as the Zebras humbled Monroe 17-2, then buried Wyandotte 12-7 last week.

"We got more runs in those two games than we did in the previous four," Chronowski said. "I was beginning to have some doubts after losing those four games, but I'm convinced now we can be very competitive."

The two victories lifted Wayne to an even .500 record in the Great Lakes 8 Conference - and that's without the benefit of playing a single game on the home field. Wayne's diamond has been mired in mud because of the recent inclement weather.

"Hopefully with warmer weather due this week, we'll be able to play a couple of games before the home crowd," quipped Chronowski.

Mark Korte made his initial appearance on the mound for Wayne and chalked up the lopsided 17-2 victory over Monroe. His teammates erupted for nine runs in the second inning aided by Larry Reid's three-run homer.

Billy Fox also homered with one aboard in the sixth while Skip Walker chipped in a two-run double (also in the second inning) and Ray Layton contributed two hits.

Korte notched eight whiffs and walked two in throwing a five-hitter at the hapless Trojans who were tagged earlier in the season as a possible title contender.

Korte smacked a homer and doubled against Wyandotte which aided Mark Zerna to post his first conference victory of the campaign. Zerna needed some help, though, as Chronowski hustled in reliever Ray Lanczek with two aboard and no outs in the sixth.

Walker again looked good at the plate as he stroked three hits in four appearances and also batted in four runs. Robert Nutt finished the game with three for four.

The victory cut a four-game Wayne losing streak and the Zebras head into the week with undefeated Taylor Truman staring at them from the top of the standings. Wayne was scheduled to meet Truman on Monday, then hit the road to Taylor Center on Wednesday and return to the home field on Friday for the key Fordson confrontation.

Zebra gals handed 1st track loss

Wayne Memorial's chances for a Great Lakes 8 Conference girls' track & field championship took a turn for the worse last week as Coach Floyd Carter's team dropped a 77-46 decision to unbeaten Monroe.

"The meet was closer than the final score would indicate," said Coach Carter whose team is sporting a 3-1-1 conference record. "There were some events that could have gone either way, unfortunately, they went to Monroe."

Wayne did receive some sterling performances as evidenced by Amy McBain's winning toss in the discus. Miss McBain's effort of 106'10" set a school record and qualified her for the regionals.

Hurdlers Pam Matajasik and Jill Preston finished second and first respectively in the event and qualified for the regional. Miss Matajasik also cleared 5 feet in the high jump for a victory.

Lora Weyand's 12:40 in the 2-mile run gave the Zebras' their final win. It also will give Miss Weyand a shot at the regional crown.

Wayne will await Wyandotte on Thursday for their final league test before the regionals.

East's John Topalian went the distance, struck out five and walked four in twirling a seven-hitter. Mark Cesarz also gave up seven hits, fanned one and walked two. His downfall came in the fifth when East broke a 3-all deadlock with three runs to take the lead for good.

The Westlanders looked as if they were going to pull it out as Dalimonte, with one away in the seventh, singled and moved to second when Knurek walked. Then Armstrong singled home the first run and, with two away and men on first and third, Remington singled in the second run in that inning.

Topalian sealed the victory by getting Mark Cesarz to fly out for the final putout.

Armstrong, who is as potent at the plate as he is at a basketball court, collected a pair of singles and a triple in four appearances. He's presently batting .545 in the league.

McKenzie pitched a five-hitter as Glenn beat league newcomer, Redford Union, 3-2, in their inaugural meeting in the Northwest. The Rocket hurler notched two strikeouts and walked six.

Loser Bill Hunter lost a 1-0 third inning lead when Tim Ruark started the fourth with a walk, moved to second on an infield out and was singled home by Suida.

Glenn scored two decisive runs in the sixth on a fielder's choice which put Ruark on base, a Remington double, scoring Ruark and Cesarz' base hit.

The victory was Westland's first in three conference starts and they're slated to host undefeated league leader, North Farmington, on Friday after playing Thurston on Tuesday.

Westland driver likes lure of world of auto racing

Westland residents seek recreation in many activities, however, few activities require the financial, mental, physical and time expenditure needed to attain recognition and a feeling of self-satisfaction than motor racing.

Robin Ungar has pursued production sports car racing for the past five years and has achieved increasing success with each additional year of experience.

While vacationing in California in 1973, Robin enrolled in the Bob Bondurant School of High Performance Driving. The School has had in the past such famous Hollywood celebrities as James Garner, Paul Newman, Dick Smothers and Steve McQueen.

After spending three days driving open wheel formula type cars as well as production sports cars, Robin decided to utilize his mechanical engineering degree and physical endurance in the club racing field.

Racing under the sanction of the Sports Car Club of America, Detroit Region, Robin has competed on tracks from Michigan to Florida. The tracks are twisting asphalt ribbons ranging from one and a half to four miles long laid over countryside, and demanding skills in cornering, braking and gear changing. Participants compete wheel to wheel for a variety of cups and trophies but mainly for the points to be accumulated toward regional and national championships.

Robin's car is a 1968 Triumph Spitfire which was driven for one year on the streets before being converted to a road racer by its original owner. The car was campaigned locally with limited success before being purchased by Robin in 1974. Since that time, the car, and the driver, have improved with each passing season.

Last year Robin led the Central Division Regional Championship until the last three races. However, major component failures prevented his competing in the last two events and, as a result, he finished in third place and receive a beautiful wall plaque for his efforts.

For 1979, Robin plans to compete in national events with the goal of earning an invitation to the National Championship which is held each year in Atlanta, Georgia, in October. With his 6th place finish at Charlotte Motor Speedway on April 1, Robin has five points earned toward that goal.

His next national race will be May 19 at the Nelson Ledges Road Course in Warren, Ohio. He also has plans to race at Elkhart Lake, Wisconsin, IRP, Mid Ohio and other Mid-western tracks.

Quotes worth quoting...

Howard W. Newton said it

potpourri

BY LEE SMITH

Suburban Living Editor

Be prepared! You will no doubt find me rambling on about my new surroundings for weeks to come as, each day, we discover something new and different.

The latest occurrence has been sighting deer — bucks, does, fawns — whole families of them, grazing in nearby fields, standing tall and just staring back at us and causing the adrenalin to surge by springing across the road RIGHT in front of our car.

Sue and I came up over a rise the other evening at dusk, and there was a pick-up stopped smack dab on the pavement in front of us.

We both grumbled a bit but then realized that the driver (armed with a pair of binoculars) had spotted a small group of deer just standing at attention inviting drivers to gawk a bit. We, too, braked and took in the thrilling picture.

BG, who'd commuted for eight months before we changed our address, had many times experienced the excitement of seeing the "Northern critters" along the roadways this far south. He and his golf partner also glimpsed a nice buck along the fairways last week and knew they weren't just seeing things when they later spotted deer tracks in the sandtraps.

Gail Snible, one of our keyliners in the Wayne comp room, asked if I was still taking peoples' pet peeves for this column. Always and anytime someone has one (or a dozen) to offer, I told her.

Seems Gail's been getting the "runaround" in her attempts to locate garage sales advertised on street corners and lamp posts.

"A pet peeve of mine," she wrote down, "is — garage sale signs that don't have dates! I actually believe there should be a city ordinance that signs must be removed as soon as the sale is over, but since there is no such law, some signs hang on street corners indefinitely. It sure would be a courtesy to let us know just WHAT "Saturday or Sunday" or "Today" they're talking about.

Personally, when I see an undated sign I go on by rather than waste time wandering through a neighborhood looking for the sale that "isn't there." It would take only a minute to add the date to your sign, folks, and I bet you'd get more customers, too, if you did," she concluded.

The timing for that suggestion is most apropos for yours truly since she will be "garage sale-ing" it in just another week or so and would probably have just used arrows on the signs at the ends of the road. Thanks, Gail.

Checked out several bathroom departments and accessory shops while on a shopping jaunt with Sue last week. And — came to the conclusion that homemakers no longer have a need for those holders that encase facial tissue boxes.

They ARE gorgeous (and so are the prices) but have you seen some of the beautiful packaging the designers have come up with these days? I even found beige-colored tissues in a lovely decorative dark brown box for one bathroom with that color scheme. The manufacturers seem to be producing prettier and prettier paper products — towels, napkins, placemats, cups, plates, — and if you look beyond "Hallmark" for some of them, you'll discover an even more diversified selection.

SINCE I HAD two requests for the same information last week, I decided to re-run the item which appeared in one of my earliest "potpourri" columns. It's the easiest and surest way of washing plastic shower curtains and liners. Taken from a Heloise bit many years back, I've used the method dozens of times (and with no repercussions from the liquids involved.)

Put shower curtains in washing machine. Fill with hot water. Add two bath towels and one-third cup each of detergent, bleach and ammonia. Run through entire cycle with washer lid down.

Rinse in plain hot water to which has been added at least one cup of vinegar. Do not rinse vinegar out. Won't work without the bath towels!

ANOTHER IDEA from Heloise (I keep her best ones filed under "Helpful Hints" in my shoe box recipe file) is for grease removal.

Did you know baking soda will remove any grease spot from carpeting? Simply sprinkle a generous amount over the spot and brush lightly through the pile of the rug.

Leave the soda overnight and vacuum it off the next day. It works like magic and even removes old grease spots as well.

WOULDN'T IT BE GREAT — to write like Erma Bombeck ... sing like Ella Fitzgerald ... dance like Ann Margret ... cook like Julia Child ... give advice like Abbey ... skate like Dorothy Hamill ... act like Katherine Hepburn ... do comedy like Carol Burnett ... interview like Dan Rather ... golf like Nancy Lopez ... entertain like the Schoenitz ... compose like Marvin Hamlisch ... look like Priscilla Presley?

EVER WONDER how the term "Tar Heel" (for the state of North Carolina) came to be? Since we're just back from that lovely sector and I picked up a little brochure with the explanation, I thought I'd verse you on a bit of southern lore.

The term "Tar Heel" is used today with dignity and respect. In early North Carolina history (1720-1870) the leading commercial industry was tar, pitch, rosin and turpentine.

During the Civil War in time of battle, legend recalls that soldiers fording the "Tar River" found their feet black with tar that had been dumped into the water.

North Carolinians were known to hold their places on the front lines and were said to have stuck to their posts because "they had tar on their heels". After one of the fiercest battles between the states, General Lee said, "God bless the Tar Heel boys" and from this they took the name.

The term "Tar Heel" is used with great pride by everyone who is, or has ever been, a resident in the sovereign state of North Carolina.

THE BOTTOM LINE: The secret of dealing successfully with a child is not to be its parent.

Follow the yellow brick road

This group of unusually-garbed characters will be on stage May 10 and 11 to entertain audiences with their rendition of "The Wizard of Oz." With a cast of 200, the production will feature fourth, fifth and sixth graders from Merriman Elementary School in Romulus. Sharing directorship of the fantasy are Charles Shamey and Cherie Leja. Curtain time is 7:30 p.m. at Romulus Senior High School and admission is $1 for adults and 50 cents for children.

Group returns from KFOC meeting in Bucyrus, Ohio

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Mericle of Denton Road attended the 27th bi-annual K.F.O.C. International Seaway Regional Meet on Sunday, April 29, at the Elks Lodge No. 156 Building at Bucyrus, Ohio. Members also present from this area were Mr. and Mrs. Alton Sabin and family of Romulus and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin of Canton.

The Saturday night open house was hosted by the Mericles for members at Holiday Inn. Early arrivals on Saturday enjoyed a planned tour of the Copper Kettle firm in Bucyrus. Robert Picking, owner of the firm originally started by his grandfather, who will be 100 years old this coming July, is still active in the business. He was a perfect host explaining the workings of the industry.

Later a caravan in Kaiser-Frazer cars drove to the building owned by Homer I. Swalley, a former K-F dealer, where parts (which are scarce and in great demand), were for sale.

Members, who registered at the meet, were given a piece of K-F memorabilia to add to their K-F collection. This "original stuff" was recently acquired out of American Motors Corp. (formerly the Kaiser Jeep Corp.) in Toledo, Ohio.

The traditional buffet pot luck was held on Sunday followed by a business meeting. Special guests were Alan McCulloch, vice-president of K.F.O.C. International, from Minneapolis, Minn., along with Mr. and Mrs. Keith Zimmerman and John Haller, also from Minneapolis, who made their initial visit.

A total of 16 trophies were awarded for Best of Show per class and 1st and 2nd long distance trophies.

Members also were present from Indiana, Illinois, Kentucky, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Canada and Michigan.

Mrs. Mericle is still manager of the Michigan, Ohio, Canada Seaway, a Region of the mid-west division.

MUSICAL NOTES

by Doug Brown

Music in China has always been important and held a high position in the cultural and social scheme of things. The three major areas in which it is used include festival of the agricultural year, ceremonies of the imperial court and religious rituals. It is based on the traditional Chinese concept of the universe, the ideas of Yin and Yang. The balancing of Yin, the female principle, and Yang, the male principle, is at the base of all ancient Chinese philosophy, religion, and social structure. In all ceremonies, the purpose of the music was to imitate and sustain the harmony between these two principles.

Go first class with the instrument of your choice from DOUG BROWN MUSIC, 9219 S. Wayne Rd., Romulus, 941-5484 and feel confident that your particular purpose in buying that instrument will be met. Watch for our occasional specials. Master Charge, Visa and local bank financing available.

MR. AND MRS. CHARLIE CAINCROSS

Golden wedding day celebrated

On the occasion of their recent 50th wedding anniversary, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Caincross of 36 Carmel, Belleville, were feted at a surprise dinner party at the Karas House in Westland. The couple's six sons and four daughters and their spouses played host at the celebration.

Guests from out of state included the Caincross' brothers and sisters from Florida, Ohio and West Virginia. The golden year pair were very pleased to greet so many of the family whom they'd not seen since moving to Michigan from West Virginia.

Among the many gifts and cards received were congratulations from President Jimmy Carter and Governor William Milliken.

Married April 30, 1929 in Blakely, W. Va., the couple's family tree also includes 27 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

Stress lawn mower safety

The beginning of another lawn-mowing season means that lots of parents are going to be teaching their youngsters how to handle power lawn mowers. Nancy Butler, Washtenaw County Horticultural Assistant, suggests that parents begin by setting a good example of proper safety practices.

"Start the season by rereading your owner's manual," advises Butler. "Check your equipment to make sure all safety shields are in place and everything is operating OK."

The next step is proper fueling. Store fuel in a 26 gauge, red and labeled gasoline can — not in glass or plastic containers or cheap metal cans that can be easily punctured. Always fill the mower with gas before mowing, while the engine is cool. Fuel away from any source of spark or flame. If refueling is necessary, take a break and allow the engine to cool off first. Always fuel and start small engines outdoors, rather than in a garage or basement where gas fumes and carbon monoxide would build up.

"Most lawn mower injuries occur when a hand or foot comes in contact with the rotating blades or a person is struck by an object thrown by the blades," Butler says.

To avoid injuries by thrown objects, remove wires, twigs, rocks and other debris before you begin to mow. Protect your feet with heavy shoes — mowing with bare feet or sandals or tennis shoes is asking for trouble. Wearing safety glasses to protect your eyes is also a good idea.

Keep your feet under you instead of under the mower by mowing only when the grass is dry. Wet grass is slippery, Butler points out, especially on hills. With a walking mower, mow across a slope rather than up and down, so that you don't slip into the mower. And push, never pull, the mower. If you slip and fall as you're pulling a mower toward you, you're likely to pull it over your feet.

When a mower becomes clogged, turn off the machine and disconnect the spark plug wire or unplug an electric mower before you try to unclog it, Butler cautions.

Most accidents involving rotary mowers involve people getting their hands injured when trying to unclog the grass discharge opening.

"Turning the machine off is not enough," she says. "Moving the blades by hand could start the engine up again and set the blades twirling while your hands are still in there."

If you use a riding mower or lawn and garden tractor, the greatest danger of injury occurs when you're getting on and off. It's easy for your foot to slide under the mowing deck and come in contact with the rotating blades. Unless you machine has a weight detection switch in the seat that disengages power to the blades, you must remember to cut power to the blades and turn off the engine before getting off.

When mowing a hillside with a riding mower, ride up and down the slope to avoid the possibility of tipping over sideways.

To prevent injury to bystanders while you're mowing, make sure there aren't any, Butler advises. Clear children and pets out of the mowing area so they won't be hit by hurled objects. When you're operating a riding mower, look behind you every time before you back up to make sure there's no one there.

"No riders' is an excellent rule for riding lawn mowers and garden tractors," Butler notes. "The chance that a child might fall under the machine is a totally unnecessary risk."

It goes without saying, she concludes, that you should never leave a mower of any type running unattended. When you turn the machine off and leave it, remove the ignition key, disconnect the spark plug wire, carry the electric cord away with you or otherwise make the machine inoperable. Remember that children are curious and like to imitate what they see grown-ups doing.

Pat Fleming wins at organ festival

The Yamaha Electone Organ Festival held April 29 in Wayne resulted in a divisional win for Patricia Fleming of Belleville. Miss Fleming competed in the Youth Division II with her own arrangement of a medley from "West Side Story". Runner-up was Christopher Odom playing "Brazilian Sleigh Bells." Also vying for the award was Dean Blood with "I Write the Songs" and Doyle Carnahan playing "The Entertainer".

MISS FLEMING

In the Hobbyist Division the winner was Marty Callica with a selection of "Deep Purple" and the runner-up, Myra Sanders, playing "Just in Time". The other contestants in the division were Jean Brinkman playing a medley from "Sound of Music", Phyllis Dorton playing "Third Man Theme" and Homer Nately with his selection, "Danse de la Poupée".

The contestants were judged both on the prepared selection of their choice and on improvisation which they were asked to play by the judges.

Miss Fleming and Miss Callica, top winners in the two divisions, will travel to Rockton, Ill. on May 18 to compete in the Mid-West Regional Yamaha Electone Organ Festival to be held at the Wagon Wheel Resort there.

This is the second year Miss Fleming has been chosen a winner at the district level. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Fleming of 42651 E. Huron River Dr., Belleville, she has played the organ and piano for several years. She is very much involved with her music and is presently organist at Faith United Methodist Church in Denton and piano accompanist for the Concert Choir in Belleville High School.

She plans to continue her studies in music at Eastern Michigan University this fall where she has already been accepted by its music department.

Microwave oven tips

Here are a few tips for new owners of microwave ovens.

1. Use only approved microwave cookware which is usually heat-resistant glass, ceramic (or combinations thereof), only certain plastics (which withstand high temperature) and paper (plates, waxed paper or paper toweling.) Metal is a no-no because it reflects microwaves rather than allowing food to absorb them.

2. Quick cooking (as in microwave) does not brown food unless you use a special browning unit.

3. Microwaves lose power as they penetrate food. Thus, stirring is required during the cooking process in certain recipes.

4. Frozen, cardboard-carton vegetables can cook in the carton, provided you slash it in a couple of places. Add butter and seasoning to the vegetable after placing in serving dish.

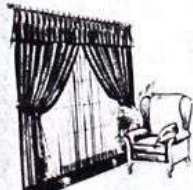

5. Learn to use the microwave oven for more than reheating. It's exciting!

Meadow Brook Hall plans buffet for Mother's Day

Spend Mother's Day in a 100-room mansion and have dinner in a dining room described by world traveler Lowell Thomas "as fine as any I have seen in palaces anywhere in the world."

The special Mother's Day Buffet May 13 will be available in the Christopher Wren Dining Room for guests touring Meadow Brook Hall. The magnificent Tudor-style home was built in the late 1920s at the cost of $4 million, but it is beyond price and would be irreplaceable in today's world, because much of the architectural skill and craftsmanship essential to its construction is now extinct.

Carefully preserved as one of the nation's historic sites, Meadow Brook Hall was built for Matilda Dodge Wilson, widow of auto pioneer John Dodge. It is located on the east campus of Oakland University in Rochester. Visitors to the hall will see 300-year-old tapestries, Georgian silver, fine glassware, gold bathroom fixtures, crystal chandeliers, silk-covered walls, hand-carved paneling and hand-hewn stonework. Antique furniture includes a wide range of periods and styles, from delicate French to massive Old English.

The Hall is open for Sunday tours from 1 to 5 p.m. Buffet is served from 1 to 4 p.m. Reservations are not required. Tour proceeds are used for the maintenance and preservation of the Hall.

Take I-75 to Oakland University exit, 25 miles north of Detroit. Drive to the university entrance, follow signs from there. For further information, call 377-3140.

Christ Church Cranbrook hosts classical concerts

The unique opportunity to hear superb baroque classical music performed by world class artists in the setting for which it was composed comes to the Detroit metropolitan area for the 14th consecutive season with the presentation Cranbrook Festival '79.

The Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra (Dennis Russell Davies, music director), the Boston Symphony Chamber Players, Wayne State University Chamber Choir (Dr. Harry Langford, director), soprano Kathryn Bouleyn, tenor David Britton, mezzo-soprano Susanne Marsee, bass John West and the Baldwin-Wallace Brass Quintet will present three consecutive evenings of Mozart, Haydn and Bach Thursday through Saturday.

Sponsored by the Cranbrook Music Guild Inc., the performances are set for 8:30 p.m. each evening at Christ Church Cranbrook, Lone Pine and Cranbrook roads, Bloomfield Hills.

The Boston Symphony Chamber Players, comprised of the principal string, woodwind, and brass players and solo tympanist of one of the world's greatest orchestras, will make their third consecutive appearance at Cranbrook Festival. The Chamber Players have made national and international tours, in addition to their annual local appearances, since creation of the group in 1964.

Detroit's own Wayne State University Chamber Choir has twice won first place in world competition in Wales and appears annually with the Detroit Symphony Orchestra. The choir will present a special program of baroque classical music with the Boston Symphony Chamber Players during the Mozart Program on Thursday.

Pianist Gilbert Kalish, considered one of today's finest interpreters of baroque classical music, will be featured during the all-Mozart program Thursday. Currently, artist-in-residence at the State University of New York at Stony Brook and head of keyboard activities at the Berkshire Music Center at Tanglewood, Kalish has performed as a soloist in the United States, Europe, Australia and New Zealand.

Recognized as one of the major chamber orchestras in the world and the only full-time professional chamber orchestra in the United States, the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra, under the leadership of Dennis Russell Davies, marks its inaugural appearance at the festival this year.

Director of the Saint Paul Orchestra since 1972, Davies is the newly appointed music director of the Stuttgart Opera House. He has been invited to conduct the New York Philharmonic, the Festival Orchestra at Aspen, the Berlin Radio Orchestra, the Bamberg Symphony and the Berlin Philharmonic, in addition to conducting a new production of Wagner's "Flying Dutchman" at the 1978-80 Bayreuth festivals.

On Friday evening, the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra will be joined by Armando Ghitalla, trumpet, in an all-Haydn program.

Principal trumpet of the Boston Symphony and a member of the orchestra since 1951, Ghitalla joins the staff of the University of Michigan School of Music as professor of trumpet this year. He was principal trumpet of the New York City Center Opera before joining Boston.

On Saturday evening Cranbrook Festival presents an all-Bach program with the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra, Wayne State University Chamber Choir and soloists Kathryn Bouleyn, Susanne Marsee, David Britton and James West.

The Baldwin-Wallace Brass Quintet, in its eighth appearance at Cranbrook Festival, again provides a musical foretaste of each evening's performance with chorals from the West Porch Roof of the church immediately preceding the Thursday, Friday and Saturday evening programs. The Quintet consists of the principals of the Baldwin-Wallace Brass Choir which performs each year at the famed Berea Bach Festival, now in its 47th year.

As a special musical dessert, University of Kansas Carillonneur Albert Gerkin will conclude this year's festival with a special free Sunday afternoon carillon recital of baroque music at 4 p.m.

Tickets for the 1979 festival are available at the festival office at 646-3595.

Greenfield Village stages Country Fair of Yesteryear

Greenfield Village's Country Fair of Yesteryear May 17-20 may come as a surprise to space-age youngsters who are accustomed to seeing honey in jars, butter in the dairy case and wool in their heavy winter pajamas.

Children here can glimpse bee-keeping, butter-churning, wool-shearing and assorted other old-fashioned skills and crafts — all demonstrated and explained so that they are easily understood from start to finish. Here, as in the rural fairs of 19th century America, there is no doubt about where everyday goods come from.

Country Fair of Yesteryear recalls the times when rural folk raised their own livestock and produced the necessities of life by hand or with the help of relatively simple machines.

Youngsters see the transformation of beef fat and lye into soap, tin into household utensils and clay into pottery. Wool is carded, spun into thread, and then woven into textiles on a loom.

Or they can see each step of the butter-making process: the initial churning of the cream, separation of the butter from the buttermilk, and then the "washing" of the butter in cold water. Youngsters can even sample the product on a square of homemade bread.

Scores of farm animals, bred and raised by members of local 4-H clubs, are another kind of agricultural product at Country Fair of Yesteryear. Horses, rabbits and goats nurture and care for their young. Quail eggs hatch before the eyes of visitors.

Veteran 4-H'ers explain the purposes of raising animals — horses for riding and show, steers for their beef and poultry for their eggs and flesh. There is even a chinchilla, whose South American cousins provided fur for many an elegant coat.

Greenfield Village recreates both the work and play of early America. Historically authentic performances introduce visitors to an old English folk tradition known as Morris dancing, a fiddle and dulcimer band, early American country music, 19th century brass band music and much more.

There is no charge for Country Fair of Yesteryear beyond the regular village admission of $3.75 for adults and $1.75 for children ages 6 through 12. Children under 6 are admitted free.

Jazz greats to highlight MB series

It will be a "star-studded lineup of jazz greats" in the Meadow Brook Music Festival's Friday night Jazz Series.

The 8-concert series opens on June 22 with the Lionel Hampton All-Stars. Also appearing will be the ever-popular jazz pianist, Marian McPartland.

On June 29, jazz aficionados will be treated to the distinctive sounds of jazz trumpeter, Dizzy Gillespie. He will be joined by Supersax, a group of five saxophone players who are well known for their unique arrangements of Charlie Parker hits.

Popular singer, Mel Tormé, will perform with Buddy Rich and his Orchestra on July 6. They're sure to do several selections from their Grammy-nominated album, entitled "Together Again For The First Time."

On July 13, the Meadow Brook spotlight will shine on another great jazz trumpet player, Maynard Ferguson, who will appear in concert with his orchestra.

The second half of the festival's summer Jazz Series begins on July 20 with Nostalgia Night. Tex Beneke and his Orchestra returns for their third Meadow Brook appearance with an exciting new show highlighting music made famous by Glenn Miller. Also featured will be vocalist Ray Eberle and the well-known singing group, The Modernaires with Paula Kelly, Jr.

Meadow Brook audiences will hear one of the living legends of jazz on July 27 when Benny Goodman and his Sextet appear in concert.

On Aug. 10, another favorite, singer Della Reese, who is originally from Detroit, will sing a wide variety of her jazz hits. Appearing with her will be one of the liveliest big bands around — Woody Herman and his Thundering Herd.

The summer Jazz Series will come to a dynamic close on Aug. 17 when the one-and-only Count Basie and his Orchestra team up with the incomparable jazz pianist, Oscar Peterson, for an exciting evening of jazz that Meadow Brook audiences are sure to remember.

All Friday performances begin at 8:30 p.m. and take place in the outdoor Baldwin Pavilion on the Oakland University campus in Rochester. Food service will be available at Trumbull Terrace on the festival grounds. For further program or ticket information, call the Meadow Brook Music Festival Box Office at (313) 377-2010.

Through writing class

Romulus author recalls 'cowpie' encounters

"I've always had an urge to write."

So says Harriet Tyler Betwee of Romulus, who has taken advantage of an informal writing class being offered to senior citizens at the Van Buren Senior Center to explore writing.

With Lois Morioka as her instructor, Ms. Betwee has been writing for some two years.

The following piece, entitled "Cow Pies I Have Known", was the result of a creative writing project for the class, which meets once a week.

"COW PIES I HAVE KNOWN"
By Harriet Tyler Betwee

The nickering of Dohany's new mare in the pasture and answering gentle whinny of her colt, awakened me early that fine May morning. As it was not yet eight o'clock, my father would just be tossing down his usual two-raw-eggs-in-milk and getting ready to crank up the Model T for its daily trip to his job in the city.

I decided it was not a moment too soon to be getting on with this day's adventures, planned the night before with Betty from across the road, where the horses lived.

As I hurried to finish my breakfast, I could hear my mother on the phone with a prospective customer for our house, up for sale since March. Her enthusiastic sales pitch—"a real garden spot, a piece of Heaven in your own backyard" as she said, made me wonder why we were planning to sell. She waxed lyrical about the "Artesian well water, winding stream at the foot of the hill, with a view across our valley of the vine-covered Methodist Church just a half-mile away."

But then I remembered my plan and hastily sneaked out the side door, gathered up my scooter and was off like a streak down Dohany's hill to pick up Betty. It had to be on the quiet that way, like a thief in the still night, as Saturday morning's plan, according to Mama, began with an hour's practice on the piano, which understandably held no charm for me on such a beautiful morning. I should explain just why this particular fine May morning was so especially wonderful: Today was the first day of this Spring season when I would be allowed to leave off the hated long winter underwear. Thus it was that Betty and I positively danced our way down the steep slope by the side of her house, through the dried leaves from last year, to the edge of the creek. We tested with our fingers whether it was warm enough for wading, decided it was just right and were soon happily enjoying the suddy feel of the cool sand around our toes. We looked for baby turtles and crabs for awhile but soon tired of that, not finding any, and crossed to the other side to head up the hill to look for the horses, our "serious play" for the day.

When we reached the top, which was the part of the pasture right across from my house, it was necessary to dart from willow tree to tree, as the horses and cows which were usually pastured here pretty well kept the weeds down, and thus Mama could look over and spy us if we were not eternally watchful. What fun! Pretending to be little Indians, we hopped around in the grass trying to catch the lazy grasshoppers in midflight. But suddenly something dreadfully soft and squishy oozed up around my toes and, sure enough, I had landed in a fresh cow pie. I considered for a minute running home for Mama to clean it off but quickly discarded that foolhardy notion and, instead, searched about me for a good-sized plantain leaf to do the job. It was much too early in the year for good-sized plantain leaves so last year's dried ones had to serve till we scrambled back down the hill to rinse off in the creek. Then we picked up our sandals and headed for the barn and some sliding and tumbling in the haymow.

Later that day, as I sat on the back porch with a bucket of warm sudsy water and wash cloth, I really had to scrub to remove the sticky brown traces of the first cow pie of the season.

Many moons later, on a camping trip in the Rocky Mountains, I'm reminded of that far-away spring morning, with its sunwarmed hills and dappled cows, as I smell that rich brown aroma of my youth, floating up to my wondering, bemused nostrils. It's rising from the little fir tree I am watering, and I understand now just why this young seedling had been making such a brave start there on that dry, barren-looking mountain slope in northern Colorado. Some peaceful Bossy had been doing her good brown-cow thing and now my darling little fir tree and I are reaping the rich redolent rewards of her passing.

Each time I water that sturdy transplant, my much-loved souvenir of those brown hills of the West, my nose reminds me anew of "Cow Pies I Have Known."

College Week '79 stresses families with youngsters

In keeping with the International Year of the Child, College Week 1979 on the Michigan State University campus includes a number of classes for and about families with children.

Sponsored by the Family Living Education Program of the university's Cooperative Extension Service, College Week is more than 50 years old. This year the event is set for June 18-21, with more than 50 classes and activities planned for an expected audience of more than 1,000.

College Week "students" may either take three classes during the four days or choose "Values Development—The Parents' Part", an in-depth look at how a child's moral judgement develops. Ted Ward, coordinator of the MSU Educational Development Program, will teach the class.

A class examining the effect of television on children will be taught by Eileen Earhart, chairperson of the MSU department of family and child sciences.

"By high school graduation, the average child has spent more time in front of the TV than in class," she says. The effect of television on children will be taught by Eileen Earhart, chairperson of the MSU department of family and child sciences.

"By high school graduation, the average child has spent more time in front of the TV than in class," she noted. She will suggest some ways parents can more effectively control television viewing in the home.

Vera Borosage, professor of family and child sciences, will talk about changes in thought and action during "Families in Transition", her College Week class. Another class, "People and Families", will provide some tips on how to improve family communication and self-esteem.

Among the other family-related classes scheduled for College Week are "Moral and Spiritual Values Available to Families", "Developing Self-Esteem in You and Your Family", "In Search of Your Family Roots", "Planning Family Financial Security", "Motivation and Discipline for Children" and "An African Family Today".

Further information on College Week, including a registration form and brochure, is available from Kathleen Bufton, extension home economist, at 721-6565.

Information also can be obtained by contacting Wilma Miller, program coordinator, at 202 Wills House, Michigan State University, East Lansing 48824, or at (517) 355-6586.

STOMACH ULCERS

Have you ever heard someone refer to one of the more exclusive residential areas in your home town as "Ulcer Row"? How often have you heard Madison Avenue referred to as "Ulcer Alley"? Even in the world of entertainment ulcers have nearly become a badge of the profession. Yes, peptic ulcers could nearly be considered a status symbol if it were not for the fact that today, this condition, which was once reserved almost entirely for the hard pressing business man, has begun to take its toll among men and women in every walk of life.

There is much discussion about ulcers, they are even joked about by today's entertainers, but what exactly are peptic ulcers? Where do they come from? What danger signal do they present and most important, what can be done about them?

Peptic ulcers are nothing more than open sores on the lining of the stomach or the upper part of the small intestine. In men they are most often in that part of the small intestine known as the duodenum, and therefore they are known as duodenal ulcers. In women the ulcers are almost always in the stomach. There they are known as gastric ulcers. Usually the ulcers occur singularly, but more than one can be present.

Emotional and nervous tension play an increasingly important role in the development of ulcers. This is why recurrence is so frequent unless the basic, underlying cause is located and corrected. It is because of this nervous factor, that chiropractic has been so successful in the care of both gastric and duodenal ulcers. When an interference in the normal supply of the vital nerve force is present the body can become more easily upset, the mucus lining of the stomach can develop an area of lowered resistance, and the highly acid content of the digestive juices can damage the wall of the stomach or intestine and an ulcer can begin to develop.

Pain is by far the most common sign of ulcers. The pain may vary from a mild discomfort to a sharp, severe, sometimes penetrating sensation. Quite frequently it is steady aching or gnawing that resembles a constant hunger pain. The pain of peptic ulcers has four distinctive characteristics however; they are: 1. The pain generally of the same type and in the same location. 2. It tends to maintain a rhythm of occurrence. 3. It has a tendency to regular period of remission. 4. The pain proves to become chronic. Pain, however, is not the only symptom of ulcers. Constipation is frequent, heartburn, swelling, nausea, vomiting and weight loss may be present in uncomplicated cases. Vomiting of blood occurs in some cases and it may even be the first symptom to appear. Peptic ulcers may perforate, allowing the contents of the stomach or intestine to escape into the abdominal cavity. When this happens symptoms are severe and death can occur.

In most cases of ulcers, chiropractic offers the safest, surest, most effective way to elimination. The science of chiropractic is directed and dedicated to the location and correction of the cause of chronic nerve interference that results in lowered resistance in some part of the body. If ulcers are a result of a change in the supply of the vital nerve power from the brain down into the digestive system, your chiropractor is the man most qualified to locate and correct the cause of this change. In many cases vertebral misalignment with resulting pressures on the spinal cord and spinal nerves is one of the main reasons for the development of peptic ulcers.

ONLY NATURE HEALS! CHIROPRACTIC PROVES IT!

Yes, only nature heals. And the only help she often needs is to eliminate nerve interference. When the body structure is out of balance or a vertebra and disc, or other joint, slip out of alignment, nature's healing may be slowed by the resulting interference to normal nerve supply. When this happens, the chiropractor must be called upon to help eliminate this nerve interference.

In antiques series lecture

Village's president emeritus discusses furniture

The Henry Ford Museum Antiques Lecture Series offering tomorrow will feature Dr. Donald A. Shelley, president emeritus of Greenfield Village and Henry Ford Museum, who will discuss the formation of the Henry Ford Museum furniture collection over the years.

In "The Henry Ford Museum Furniture Treasury," Dr. Shelley will begin with the early acquisitions of Henry Ford himself and will illustrate, with diagrams and slides of treasured pieces, the evolution of the present exhibits during the past 25 years. Dr. Shelley takes his title from the furniture collector's "bible," Furniture Treasury, published by Wallace Nutting in 1928.

Ford was one of the first to collect New England Pilgrim, Philadelphia, Queen Anne and Chippendale furniture, and especially New York Duncan Phyfe pieces. Of the latter, he acquired more than 200 pieces, many of outstanding quality in today's terms.

The museum's furniture collection differs from that of some other museums in that it cuts across regions, styles and periods to capitalize in 15 room interiors and alcove vignettes, the best products of American cabinet-making from the Pilgrim period down to the 1876 Centennial celebration. In addition, it is highlighted with "association pieces" once belonging to famous Americans: Ford fortunately had a personal interest in collecting these treasures while they still were available.

The evolution of the exhibits was aimed at explaining the progressive style changes in American furniture that took place in key cabinet-making areas along the Eastern Seaboard. Each area, Dr. Shelley points out, "speaks of its own vocabulary of regional characteristics," and because several of these areas have been identified since Mr. Ford's day, "we tried to keep our display up to date with current research and by reorganizing our exhibits every five or six years."

Dr. Shelley served as executive director and president of the village and museum from November 1954, until his retirement in August 1976. A graduate of Pennsylvania State University, he received his master of arts in art history from Harvard University and his doctorate in American art from New York University.

The lecture begins at 8:30 p.m. in Henry Ford Museum Theater. Admission is $3. Call (313) 271-1620, ext. 550, for more information.

Masterpiece tours set for Noguchi

The Detroit Institute of Arts will feature free admission to the current special exhibition "Noguchi's Imaginary Landscapes," the Cantata Academy Choir and "Masterpiece Tours" from 6 to 9 p.m. May 23, during the fifth annual May Odyssey in the Cultural Center.

All the museum's 101 galleries will be open to the public that evening as part of the Michigan Week celebration, with 40 years of Isamu Noguchi's (Detroit's fountain sculptor) creativity turning two floors of the South Wing into a panorama of sculpture, designs for parks, playgrounds, plazas, and theatre sets for major dance companies, dramatized by 20-minute color videotape of the Martha Graham Company in performance.

The Cantata Academy Choir will appear from 7 to 7:30 p.m. in the museum's Kresge Court cafe (which will offer a limited menu). Masterpiece tours of the permanent collection by staff members will begin every 30 minutes from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m. For enjoyable family visiting that evening, Woodward Avenue will be closed to traffic between Putnam and Kirby. More than 16 institutions in the Cultural Center will participate in the indoor-outdoor May Odyssey celebration.

Extension has stress classes

Physicians, psychologists, counselors and others in the helping professions are talking about the need for the management of stress and stress related to disease.

Family Living Education of the Michigan State University Cooperative Extension Service, Wayne County, is coordinating an evening seminar on "The Management of Stress and Stress Related to Disease" and "Coping as a Single Parent" at 8 p.m. May 31 at the first United Presbyterian Church of Dearborn, 600 N. Brady St.

program will include effective parenting techniques, which demonstrate how to listen to children's feelings and start a good family communications systems.

The seminars will cost $2. Registration is recommended and can be completed by calling the Extension Office at 721-6565 or 563-2950. Last minute registrations will be accepted by telephone, if space permits.

"The accumulated effects of stress can hasten the aging process and damage your health," said Monica Rice Wendling, a practicing psychotherapist at the Samalona Clinic in Birmingham, who will present the session on stress. "You can learn to control your physical and emotional responses."

At the same time single parents can find help at the session entitled "Coping as a Single Parent," presented by Kathleen Parker, a parenting education instructor and single parent. Her

Festival of Wheels

Three-day, fun-filled celebration to honor man's greatest invention

A BIG WHEEL — The Wheelmen, a cycling group that includes Rick Larzelere (above), will perform on Saturday at the Dearborn Civic Center.

For centuries, throughout the world, flowers of all varieties, beer, cherries, apples, oranges and hundreds of other items have been used as themes to stage festivals.

But why a Festival of Wheels?

THE DEARBORN Chamber of Commerce created the Festival of Wheels to honor man's greatest invention. After centuries of being taken for granted the wheel will finally be getting the royal treatment it so well deserves.

It's only natural that an idea to recognize the wheel should originate and emanate from Dearborn which has done so much to put the world on wheels.

The technological, economic and social progress of civilization across the face of the earth can be measured in terms of man's use of the wheel in almost unlimited applications.

MANY OF THE "unlimited applications" will be highlighted in the Festival of Wheels' three days of entertainment.

Activities vary, from big wheel races for tots to views of the famed Budweiser Clydesdale Hitch team pulling a beer wagon straight out of Americana.

Gala parade entries include antique cars, a Disco Van, bands and trailers pulling picturesque floats.

A PIE-EATING contest — featuring wheel-shaped desserts, naturally — and carnival rides aboard "wheeled monsters" mark activities at the Dearborn Civic Center.

Like the wheel itself, the list spins on and on — forming a circle of entertainment and outright fun which will not end for three full days.

Budweiser Clydesdales to star in festival parade

The world-famous Budweiser beer wagon and eight-horse Clydesdale team, the U.S. Army and Cordoza Marching Bands, a series of colorful floats and priceless antique cars will share "star" billing in an hour-long parade which officially will kick off Dearborn's Festival of Wheels.

Scheduled for 7 p.m. Friday, May 11, the parade will progress west on Michigan Avenue from the Dearborn City Hall at Michigan and Schaefer to the Dearborn Civic Center at Michigan and Greenfield.

THE CLYDESDALE Hitch, familiar to an entire generation of television viewers, will be making its first appearance in southeastern Michigan, courtesy of Anheuser-Busch, Inc.

Local attractions appearing in the parade include Ronald McDonald, the Burger King Magician and Eve Hewitt, the reigning "Miss Dearborn."

Four local school bands — Dearborn High, Fordson High, Edsel Ford High and Lowrey Junior High — will join the U.S. Army and Cordoza Marching Bands in providing parade music. The Cordoza Unit recently was honored with its selection to perform during the United States' welcome to the first Chinese delegation in Washington, D.C.

ANTIQUE AND custom car fans will delight at the opportunity to view scores of vintage autos passing in review.

Edsels, Bricklins, Rolls Royces, Sheldys, Mustangs, and Cobras are but a few of the parade entries. The Veteran Motor Car Club of America is conducting its 1979 national meet in Dearborn to coincide with the Festival of Wheels.

Floats will vary from such popular commercial entries as Burger King and Manufacturers Bank to a 10-by-40-foot rolling Salute to Dearborn's 50th Anniversary, specially created for the parade by the Dearborn Historical Museum and the Dearborn 50th Anniversary Celebration Commission.

FAIRLANE ICE Arena also has entered a specialty float and American Airlines will feature a scale model of the historic Ford Trimotor pulled by a Ward's tractor.

Other parade units will include WDRQ Radio Disco Van, the AAA Bring 'em Back Alive Van and the Sing Out Dearborn float, featuring live musical entertainment.

Besides its appearance in the parade, the Budweiser Clydesdale Hitch also will be available for viewing on: Thursday, May 10, from 2 to 6 p.m. at the Westborn Shopping Center at Michigan and Outer Drive; Saturday, May 12, from 2 to 4 p.m. at the Fairlane Town Center at Southfield and Hubbard Drive and from 4 to 6 p.m. at the Hyatt Regency Dearborn Hotel and Sunday, May 13, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Dearborn's Civic Center at Greenfield and Michigan.

Women jazz musicians to perform

Festival to feature two-night women's jazz festival

TERRI LYNE CARRINGTON

Dearborn's most famous son, Henry Ford, is credited with putting the world on wheels.

And, while the musical tastes of this inventive genius were more traditional, one has to believe he readily would have approved the idea of spotlighting another distinctive American invention — Jazz — during the country's first Festival of Wheels.

THE FESTIVAL committee showed some ingenuity of its own in deciding how best to package a jazz extravaganza. It went out and gathered the top women jazz musicians from across the country to perform in Dearborn.

The result will be a two-day women's jazz festival under a colorful blue and white tent on the grounds of the posh Hyatt Regency Dearborn Hotel Friday and Saturday, May 11 and 12.

The two 8:30 p.m. performances will be distinctly different.

FRIDAY'S performance will feature

"Aerial," a New York-based group which recently won the 1979 Women's Jazz Festival Combo Contest.

"Aerial" performers include leader Nina Sheldon, who handles the vocals and piano; Barbara London, flute; Jane Bloom, saxophone; Carline Ray, bass, and Barbara Merijan, drums.

Other Friday performers include Lenore Paxton, Ursula Walker, Andrea Jackson and Terri Lyne Carrington.

MISS CARRINGTON, is a 13-year-old drummer who has performed with Oscar Peterson and Buddy Rich. She recently drew the ultimate in compliments from Dizzie Gillespie, who exclaimed: "Oooowee, man, that little girl can play!"

Saturday's show will star the Mary Osborne Quintet, led by the noted guitarist and Esquire poll winner who has recorded with the likes of Coleman Hawkins and Joe Venuti.

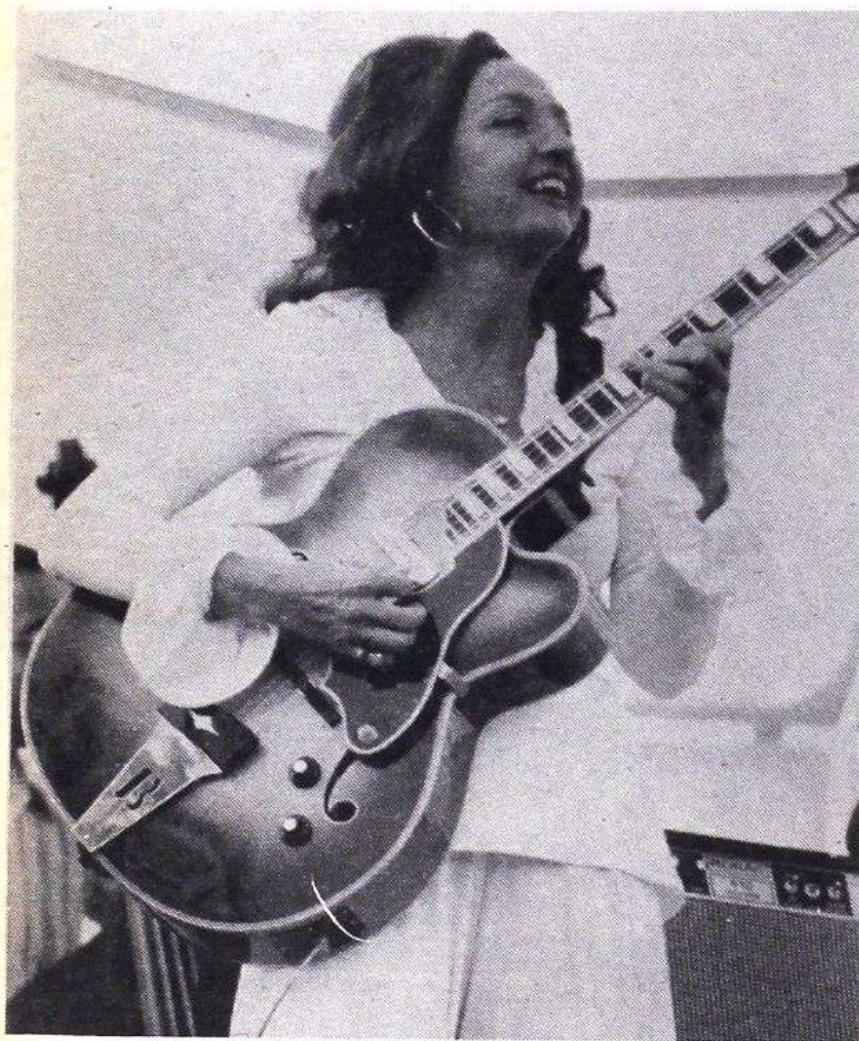

Other jazz greats appearing Saturday will be Miss Carrington; Dottie Dodgion of Charlie Mingus fame; bass player Lynn Milano, well-known recording star; Mary Fettig Park, an alumnus of Stan Kenton's Band; piano star Bess Bonnie, and Andrea Jackson, Bass.

TICKETS FOR both performances, priced at $7 per seat, may be obtained in advance from the Dearborn Chamber of Commerce office, 15544 Michigan Avenue. Door sales will be on first-come, first-served basis.

WDRQ, Peaches to sponsor free disco dance competition

The Festival of Wheels has obtained the talent and know-how of WDRQ Radio and Peaches Records to produce an area-wide disco contest in the Dome Room of the Dearborn Civic Center on Friday, May 11, from 9 p.m. to midnight.

Popular disc jockeys from the top-rated disco radio station will be on hand to handle emcee duties and supervise the judging. Best news of all — the program is free.

EARLY ARRIVALS for the dance competition should plan to watch the Festival of Wheels parade on Michigan Avenue at 7 p.m. The new WDRQ Disco Van, sporting a king-sized plexiglass window to showcase disco talent, will be one of the featured parade entries.

Free festival parking on Southfield Expressway and Ford Road should be used by all contest participants. Shuttle bus service will be available to transport persons to the Dearborn Civic Center. Fare is $1 per day.

Four buses will be operating each of the three days of the festival. On Friday, May 11, buses will run from noon to midnight. On Saturday, May 12, buses will be available from 9 a.m. to midnight. On Sunday, May 13, buses will operate from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Governor of the State of Michigan presents this

Executive Declaration

in Observance of
THE FESTIVAL OF WHEELS

Michigan's role in bringing the wheel to its modern level of utility and social impact is a breakthrough which ranks only slightly behind its invention.

Southeast Michigan has long been a hub of the modern automotive-oriented transportation industry. Almost from the beginning of the American automobile industry, Dearborn has joined Detroit in attracting and producing the technological genius that showed the world what the wheel can do.

The importance of the wheel to Southeastern Michigan is well known to every citizen of this state. The importance of Michigan to the wheel is a message that is to be spread across the country by an ambitious new program developed in Dearborn: The Festival of Wheels.

The first Festival of Wheels—celebrating Dearborn's and Michigan's central role in transportation—is to be May 11 - 13, 1979.

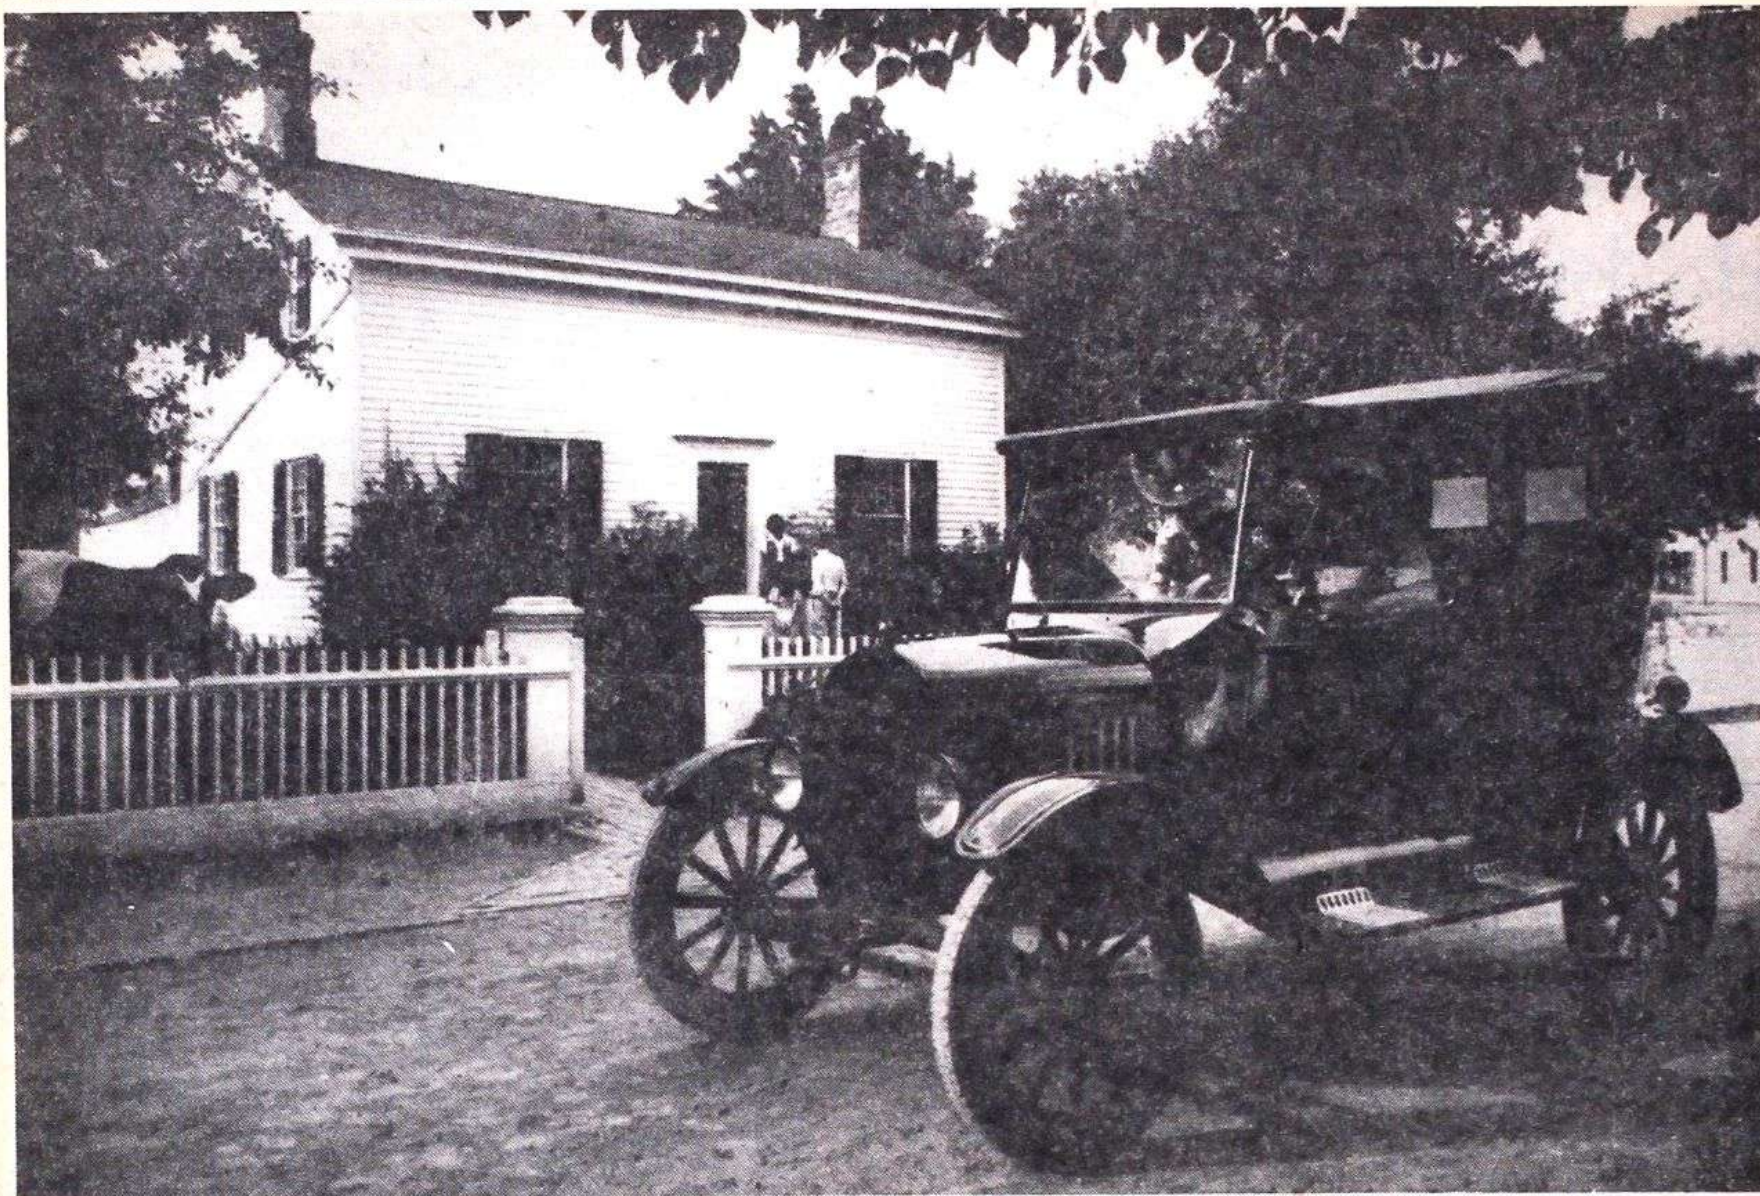

Therefore, I, William G. Milliken, Governor of the State of Michigan, do hereby declare a Festival of Wheels in Dearborn from May 11 to May 13, 1979, in recognition of the importance of the transportation industry to Michigan and the importance of Michigan to the transportation industry.

Given under my hand on this twenty-ninth day of January in the year of Our Lord one thousand nine hundred seventy-nine and of the Commonwealth one hundred forty-third.

William G. Milliken
GOVERNOR

A MODEL T — This 1923 Model T Ford idles in front of the Henry Ford homestead in Dearborn's Greenfield Village. A multitude of antique and unusual autos will be seen in the Festival of Wheels kick-off parade on Friday and at the "Swap Meet" at Ford Field each of the three days of the festival.

Cars on parade

Rare and antique cars to highlight automotive use of wheel at festival

The Rouge Plant, the Henry Ford Museum, the realities and the legend of the late Henry Ford, Graham Paige, Ford Motor Company, Greenfield Village, Chrysler.

And much more. All elements of Dearborn's proud and productive heritage. Yes, when one thinks of the automobile, one also has to think of Dearborn.

IT'S CITIZENS are exposed daily to all facets of the most famous wheeled machine in history, from vintage cars to shiny new sedans fresh off the assembly line.

Thus, it is only natural that the automobile should play a prominent role in Dearborn's first Festival of Wheels — which is placing special emphasis on cars from the past as the city celebrates its 50th anniversary.

Hundreds of priceless antique and vintage cars will travel on Dearborn streets throughout the life of the Festival.

THE VETERAN Motor Car Club of America (VMCCA) is holding its 1979 national meet in Dearborn as a highlight of the event.

Edsels, Bricklins, Rolls Royces, Shelys, Mustangs and Cobras will be entered in Friday's (May 11) 7 p.m. parade along with rare machines from both 19th and 20th century European and American manufacturers.

Car buffs will be given the opportunity to examine, buy, sell and trade parts and equipment throughout the Festival during a VMCCA-sponsored swap meet at Ford Field.

FORD FIELD, located north of Michigan Avenue in west Dearborn with access from both Monroe and Brady, will be open 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. May 11 and 12, and 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. May 13.

Admission is $1. Food and refreshments will be sold.

A special feature of the swap meet will be a gathering of the Shelby American Automobile Club throughout the day on Saturday — the same day that judging for the VMCCA's national meet is conducted at Greenfield Village.

Insurance & financing for your car, camper, motor home at AAA.

Man's greatest invention

The story of the wheel traces the history of civilization

Whether he is aware of it or not, man is deeply indebted to the wheel and its many adaptations for the superior position which he occupies on earth today.

The story of the development of the wheel is almost a history of civilization. None of man's mechanical inventions has changed and improved his way of life as dramatically as has the wheel. The technological, economic and social progress of his civilizations across the face of the earth can be measured in terms of his uses of the wheel in almost unlimited applications.

THE ACTUAL ORIGIN of the wheel is lost in the mists of antiquity. Before there were wheels, men moved heavy loads by dragging them.

Perhaps man discovered the principle of wheeled locomotion by losing his footing and sliding downhill on round stones, or through his discovery that he could move heavy objects from place to place by rolling them on logs.

Certainly there was nothing in nature resembling the wheel for man to copy or adapt. It had to be created whole, in a giant leap of the human imagination.

ARCHAEOLOGICAL researches have yielded no evidence as to the inventor of the wheel. Ancient Egypt had neither the horse nor the wagon until they were introduced by invaders from the east about 3500 B.C. Europe knew nothing of the wheel, the plow or domesticated animals until well into the Bronze Age, about 1500 B.C., and it was about this same time that China first heard of them.

It is quite reasonable to assume, therefore, that the wheel and cart were devised in Asia, around 8000 B.C. to 6000 B.C., when man first utilized the horse to drag his plow.

There are two schools of thought regarding man's discovery of the wheel. Both are agreed that man first devised the sled to transport objects and food too heavy for him to carry on his back.

BOTH SCHOOLS assume that man knew very early how to convert sliding friction into rolling friction by placing round logs under his sled to facilitate its movement, and that this suggested the wheel.

An unknown inventor may have adapted this rolling log idea some 5,000 years ago to make crude wheels from cross-sections of logs attached to the ends of a pole. Then followed the discovery that when a hole was made through the center of the rolling disc, it could revolve freely on the axle, instead of the axle turning with the wheel. Thus the rudimentary form of today's wheel was evolved.

The oldest wooden wheel ever found, that of an Egyptian chariot, was composed of a hub, spokes and a rim, just as in the modern wheel. Regardless of the origin of the wheel, whether a section of log wood or a circular disc, the first wheels produced were used to complete man's first vehicle, for he had no other use or need of wheels.

WHEELS WERE used on chariots for war and hunting. Those chariots were so light in weight that one man could lift them, with wheels about two feet in diameter, and were drawn by two horses. The Egyptians had solid-wheel cars drawn by oxen for agricultural purposes and massive four-wheel trucks for funeral and religious purposes.

The people of Europe were quick to adopt wheeled vehicles as soon as they were made known to them. Most of the vehicles used in Italy during the time of the Roman supremacy of 27 B.C. to 467 A.D. were of local origin.

During the Renaissance, the vehicular art was a part of the general cultural improvement of the period, and by the end of the seventeenth century elaborate chariots, coaches and pleasure carriages of royalty and people of high rank were in use.

TODAY, WHEELS of jetliners are equipped with tires which can withstand the friction of moving from a standstill to rotation at speeds of more than 100 miles an hour as the aircraft touches down.

And all of us move about in our cars from day to day without a thought of our indebtedness to that magic circle, the wheel.

Sunday brunch for Moms

Mom's very special day has not been forgotten in the planning for Dearborn's first Festival of Wheels.

Dad and the kids will be able to give her a special treat. A Mother's Day brunch will be held in the Dome Room of the Dearborn Civic Center on Sunday, May 12, from 10 a.m. to 3 p.m.

THE MENU IS varied: bacon, sausage, pancakes, French toast, corned beef hash, coffee, milk, juice, hash browns, fresh fruit cocktails, orange and grapefruit sections, toast, jelly and danish pastry.

The price is reasonable: $4 for adults and $3.50 for children.

Oh, and in case Mom's loved ones forget, flowers will be on sale throughout the brunch. Prices start at $1.50.

Disco events are on agenda

Besides the disco dance planned for Friday evening, WDRQ Radio is sponsoring two other disco-oriented events for Dearborn's Festival of Wheels this weekend.

A disco basketball shoot-out is scheduled for Saturday, May 12, at both 2 and 4 p.m. at the Dearborn Civic Center. The shoot-out will feature performances by several WDRQ disc jockeys as well as "Crazy George," who will demonstrate a disco basketball routine at each shoot-out. Prizes of basketballs and disco records will be awarded.

On Sunday, May 13, WDRQ will sponsor a disco demonstration featuring the Jack Burns School of Dance. The demonstration will be held outside the Dearborn Civic Center.

Dearborn Civic Center is site for variety of activities

Old-fashioned fun, with an occasional twist of the modern, will be the theme of activities to be staged at the Dearborn Civic Center throughout the Festival of Wheels.

Operating Friday and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m., will be carnival rides. Nearby, on the Henry Ford Centennial Library parking lot, Helicopter Airways will offer chopper rides (adults $5, children $4) on Saturday and Sunday from 1 to 7 p.m.

SATURDAY WILL be the key day for special events.

Big wheel races for tots (3-5) will be held at noon and the Cordoza Marching Band, fresh from entertaining the Chinese delegation in Washington, D.C., will perform (free) at 1:30 p.m.

Pie-eating contests will be held for five different age categories (eight and up) from 3 to 5 p.m. Skilled bicyclists from the Wheelman will stage demonstrations during the afternoon.

Precision driving exhibition

What's an "Autocross?"

This has become the most frequently asked question at the Festival of Wheels headquarters since some 300,000 promotional folders, distributed earlier this year, listed "Autocross" as a featured activity of the festival.

CAR BUFFS are aware that an Autocross is a precision driving exhibition.

Competition is stimulated by matching times and skills of drivers passing through specially designed obstacle courses.

The Festival of Wheels version of an Autocross will be staged by the Sports Car Club of America at the AAA parking lot, off Hubbard Drive at Southfield, on Saturday, May 12, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Admission is free.

THE BUDWEISER CLYDESDALES ARE THUNDERING YOUR WAY!

You've watched them on TV, but here's your chance to see them alive. Thirty-two giant hooves pounding in unison... proud heads held high... each magnificent champion joining in a team effort, pulling the 3½-ton Budweiser wagon. Whether you admire big horses or welcome a look into the past, come and bring your family.

A Report From Senate Majority Leader William Faust

Dear Friend,

One of the most important tasks facing the Legislature each year is the adoption of the state budget. How do we pay for a seemingly unlimited number of needs and programs with a limited amount of dollars?

That problem is one that must be resolved annually by the Legislature and the process involved in reaching agreement on a final budget is time-consuming and complex. As complicated as the budget process tends to be, this newsletter is intended to give you a good understanding of the newly proposed 1979-80 state budget on which the Legislature has begun working.

The adoption of the state budget begins with the introduction of a proposed budget by the Governor and is followed by months of meetings, public hearings, study, and debate by both the House and Senate before the final budget figures are agreed upon and then signed into law by the Governor.

The effects of the budget decisions that are made in Lansing are felt by all Michigan residents even though the million- and billion-dollar figures may seem too large and impersonal to relate to on an individual basis.

Nevertheless, the tax dollars paid by Michigan residents account for a substantial portion of budget revenues. Individuals and the communities they live in are the beneficiaries of the various programs that state budget dollars pay for, either in whole or in part.

This year the adoption of the state budget will be an even more complex process because of the effects of the tax limitation amendment on state spending.

This newsletter will show you where the money for the budget comes from and where it goes. To assist in my presentation, graphic illustrations have been used.

In focusing on next year's proposed budget, figures from the current budget (the 1978-79 fiscal year) will be used to compare with figures from the proposed budget. The state begins its fiscal year on October 1 and it ends on September 30, thus the present 1978-79 budget will terminate on September 30 of this year.

This newsletter also contains an explanation of the budgetary process itself and what steps are taken by the Legislature before final adoption is reached.

Also, because state and local government will be dealing with the budgetary ramifications of the tax limitation amendment, this letter takes into consideration what those are likely to be.

I hope the information presented here will be helpful to you in understanding the fiscal facts the Legislature must consider when it undertakes the adoption of the annual state budget. If there is any additional information you are interested in, or a question you would like answered, I will be happy to help.

Sincerely,

William Faust
Senate Majority Leader

THE NEW BUDGET: Some Important Differences

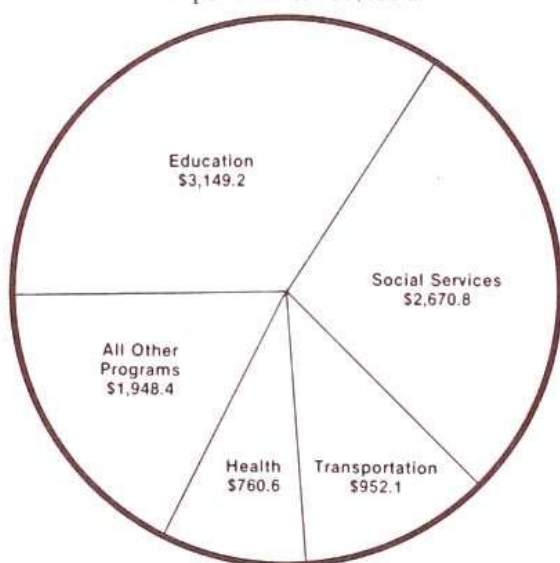

The proposed 1979-80 fiscal year budget that the Legislature is now working on is unique in some important ways.

It is the first state budget in history to go over $9 billion (combined state and federal money).

It is also the first state budget to be adopted under the limitations imposed by the recently adopted constitutional tax limitation amendment.

Furthermore, this budget, as submitted by the Governor, encompasses some controversial proposals—including a proposed major charter revision for Wayne County government and the proposed consolidation of Detroit and Wayne County court systems—that are certain to undergo great legislative scrutiny and debate.

The 1979-80 proposed budget totals $9,481,055,126. This includes both state and federal funds. The general fund budget, which includes only state funds, amounts to $4,583,187,592.

When speaking of the state budget, the general fund budget is the one commonly referred to because it is the portion of the total budget that legislators can affect through the decisions made during the annual budget adoption process.

The 1979-80 $4.58 billion general fund budget is up approximately $300 million over the present year's general fund budget, which represents an 8 percent increase.

The total $9.48 billion budget is some $800 million, or 9 percent, more than the present total budget of $8.68 billion.

There are no tax increases reflected in the proposed 1979-80 budget.

THE MANY STEPS ALONG THE WAY TO THE ADOPTION OF THE STATE BUDGET

Just where does the annual state budget come from?

When the final budget is adopted by the Legislature in the summer it is the climactic event following many months of hard work, public hearings and debate by committees of the Senate and House, representatives of the executive branch of government and the public.

The proposed annual budget for the coming year is traditionally presented by the Governor, usually at the beginning of February. The work on the budget actually begins before that time when the various state departments propose their budgets to the Governor and the Governor then works with his Director of Management and Budget to arrive at his "executive budget."

After the Governor has formally introduced his proposed state budget to the Legislature and the public, the many bills pertaining to the individual parts of the total budget are introduced in the Legislature. The bills are introduced in both the Senate and House and are generally sponsored by a legislator who is a member of the Governor's political party and who is a member of the Appropriations Committee.

The budget bills are classified by department, such as the State Transportation Department, Social Services Department, etc.

Both Senate and House are involved in the work on the budget bills from the very beginning, with approximately 40 percent of the bills beginning action in the Senate and 60 percent starting in the House.

The bills are first assigned to the important Appropriations Committees of both chambers. The full committee then divides the bills and sends them to their individual subcommittees according to departmental budget. For example, a budget bill dealing with the annual state appropriation for community colleges would be sent to the Community Colleges Subcommittee.

The "real work" on the budget bills is done in the subcommittees. Each subcommittee sets its own schedule for taking up the budget bills it has been assigned and proceeds to consider them individually. This "consideration" involves many meetings with officials from the department for which the bill will provide appropriations, as well as meetings with other experts and public hearings.

When its work on the bill is completed, the subcommittee will report the bill, along with its recommendations, back to the full Appropriations Committee. The full committee will then act on the bill, generally following the recommendations of the subcommittee, and then send the legislation to the floor of the Senate (presuming that is the chamber where the bill started out).

When the bill reaches the floor of the Senate, the subcommittee chairman is responsible for explaining that budget bill to the full Senate. The Senate may make any changes it wishes in the bill before approving it and then sending it to the House of Representatives. A bill that began on the House side would be sent to the Senate after receiving final approval in the House.

Once a bill has been passed by one legislative body it will go through a similar (but usually briefer) process of consideration in the other body until it comes to the floor for final approval.

It is the rule more than the exception that the House and Senate will pass a particular budget bill in somewhat different form. When that happens, the bill is sent to a conference committee made up of members from both the Senate and House. When the conference committee reaches final agreement on the bill, it must be returned to the full Senate and House to be reapproved in its final version by both legislative bodies.

After a bill has received final approval from both House and Senate, it is sent to the Governor to be signed into law.

The state begins its fiscal year October 1 and ends it September 30 of the following year. The Legislature usually completes its work on the budget bills for the new fiscal year sometime in June. The present deadline for completing work on the proposed 1979-80 state budget, that will begin October 1, is June 8.

The road to passage of the state budget is a long one. But the many stops along the way provide the necessary review and check and balance procedures that help assure passage of a fair and fiscally sound state budget.

It is important to remember that the State Constitution requires that the Legislature pass a balanced budget. In Michigan, our budget expenditures cannot exceed our revenues.

Although not facing a “bare bones” budget situation, the Legislature must proceed to adopt a budget that takes into account the limitations required by the “Headlee Amendment” and the slowing down of the general economy. The proposed general fund budget reflects those facts as it does not provide for any increase in the state’s budget stabilization “rainy day” fund, which is scheduled to remain at the present level of $235 million.

In addition, the proposed budget also shows the state beginning the 1979-80 fiscal year with a slim surplus of $700,000 as compared to the $63.5 million surplus at the beginning of the present fiscal year.

Money for education, health, and welfare programs accounts for 81 percent of the proposed general fund budget.

The largest individual budget increase ($163 million) has been proposed for social services.

In the area of education, an increase of $72.7 million, amounting to a nearly 10 percent increase per pupil, has been proposed for K-12. State colleges and universities are scheduled to receive an extra $46.5 million in the new budget and community colleges would get an additional $8.5 million.

It should be noted that although the total K-12 school aid budget is set at $1.97 billion, the general fund portion of that budget is being recommended at $898.9 million, down some $15 million from the present year's allocation.

Turning to mental health, the proposed total budget has been recommended at $554.9 million, up $90 million over the current year. The general fund part of that budget has been recommended at $488.2 million, an increase of $72 million.

Focusing on the areas of the proposed budget that affect Detroit and Wayne County, the Governor has recommended a $20 million increase in special state aid to Detroit that would bring the total to $51 million for the 1979-80 fiscal year.

An unprecedented $6.9 million aid package for Wayne County also has been recommended in the budget. This has been tied to a proposed major overhaul of Wayne County government. This proposal, as well as the Governor's proposal to spend $11 million to consolidate the Detroit and Wayne County court systems, is controversial and therefore will undoubtedly be the subject of much discussion.

Other highlights of the proposed 1979-80 budget include the following:

- $2.2 million for the acquisition and construction of new prison facilities.
- $3.3 million to continue the state's efforts to remove PBB from the food chain.
- $33 million for home heating assistance programs.

LEGISLATIVE CHALLENGE: Implementing Proposal E

How to go about implementing the "Headlee Amendment" (Proposal E) is one of the most perplexing questions facing the Legislature, which must now enact the legislation that will carry out the mandates of that tax limitation commandment.

The provisions of the amendment, which became part of the State Constitution after it was approved by voters last year, are easy to understand. However, there already is a great amount of disagreement among state legislators, local government officials and school leaders as to how those provisions should be defined and then implemented.

The amendment has three principal parts:

- 1) It limits state taxes to the same proportion that now exists between current state spending and total personal income in Michigan.
- 2) It requires that local millage rates be rolled back when assessed property values rise faster than the inflation rate.
- 3) It states that local governments and school districts will not have to implement any new programs required by the state unless the state agrees to pay for those programs.

Although all state budgets adopted from now on will have to meet the limitations imposed by the tax limitation amendment, it should be pointed out that the amendment will not affect the 1979-80 fiscal year budget. The budget to be adopted should be well under the limits of the amendment.

A mathematical ratio determines how the first of the tax limit mandates will be implemented, but the second and the third are being variously interpreted and it will be up to the Legislature to decide on a specific interpretation and then determine how it is to be applied.

For example, just how was the millage rollback requirement meant to apply?

The amendment states that the rollback must be from the maximum authorized rate of taxation. Many local school districts, however, are not presently levying taxes at the maximum authorized rate and so a rollback from the maximum authorized amount might not result in the desired reduction in taxes.

Thus, while there are those who are in favor of a strict interpretation of the amendment as worded, there are also many persons who feel that the amendment was really intended to apply to the tax rate as levied, even if it is not at the maximum allowable level.

In addition to having to decide on a legislative answer to that question regarding the rollback provision, the Legislature will have to determine just how much the state is financially responsible when it comes to paying for new programs and services.

Would the state, for instance, have to pay for increased wages to employees of local governments if the state minimum wage is increased?

It can be anticipated that local government officials will press for a broad interpretation of that provision.

Obviously, there are many questions yet to be resolved regarding the implementation of the Headlee Amendment. And, because they involve potentially great amounts of money and impact on taxpayers, local governments, school districts, etc., they are bound to be controversial. In fact, they already are.

I must emphasize that these questions are of vital importance to you as a citizen and taxpayer. All state programs affect you directly or indirectly and if we are forced to cut certain programs or make tough choices among programs—as I believe we will—the operations of your local government and schools, as well as such programs as public health and mental health, will be directly affected and altered.
